BLITZKREIG FAILURE

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The commander-in-chief of the Netherlands' armed forces tonight declared Germany's surprise attack on Holland a failure.

Trial Halted

EDMONTON (CP)—A stay of proceedings halting the Alberta Supreme Court trial of 35 tobacco manufacturers and dealers on combine charges was granted by Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray this afternoon. The move resulted in further action against the defendants being left in the hands of the Alberta Attorney-General's department.

The decision does not involve the nine other firms whose trial without jury was scheduled to proceed at completion of the jury hearing of the other 35, but further action against the nine is expected to hinge on the Attorney-General's future action regarding the 35.

BERLIN (AP via radio)—The following official announcement was issued today:

"The German nation has entered its decisive battle.

"In accordance with the seriousness of the hour, no dancing will take place."

BELGIANS BATTLE NAZIS AT AACHEN

LONDON (CP)—Belgian and German troops are engaged on Belgian territory near Aix-la-Chapelle (Aachen), at the point where the railway linking the Reich and Belgium crosses the border, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported tonight.

To Be Chancellor

LONDON (CP)—Authoritative sources said tonight Neville Chamberlain will return to the post of Chancellor of the Exchequer which he held for five years before he was named Prime Minister. The post now is held by Sir John Simon.

Foil Kidnap Attempt

NEW YORK (CP)—Two squadrons of Nazi planes, loaded with soldiers, were said this afternoon by Edwin Hartrich, Amsterdam correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, to have made a "daring attempt to capture Queen Wilhelmina," which apparently "has met with failure and sudden death for the perpetrators."

The correspondent said he had come upon a hot pitched battle on the outskirts of Valkenburg.

In this battle, 10 of the 16 large Junker planes had been set on fire by the Dutch snipers, Hartrich said.

DEATH CRASH

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—Lieut. A. E. Torrelle of the Seventh Squadron, U.S. Army Air Corps at Sacramento, Calif., crashed to death in a Moscow street this afternoon. The attack bomber he was flying sheered off one wing on a house a block from the business district and exploded immediately it hit the street.

CABINET SHUFFLE

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King shuffled his cabinet this afternoon, bringing Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain, Speaker of the House of Commons, into the government as Secretary of State and giving Hon. J. A. MacKinnon of Edmonton, formerly Minister without Portfolio, the Department of Trade and Commerce.

The new trade and commerce minister succeeds Hon. W. D. Euler, appointed to a Senate vacancy. The post of secretary of state has been carried on by the justice minister, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, since the death of Hon. Fernand Finfret last July.

Open City Bombed?

BERLIN (AP) — German authorities claimed tonight three "enemy" planes bombed the "open city" of Freiburg in southwestern Germany this afternoon, killing 24 civilians. They boasted that Germany "will answer fivefold." The bombs were said to have dropped in the centre of the city.

IN COMBAT

PARIS (AP) — French and British troops advancing along the entire front from the Moselle River to the North Sea, engaged the German invaders of the low countries in "sharp combats" inside the little Duchy of Luxembourg, the general staff reported tonight.

New Ministers Join French Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—Premier Reynaud tonight announced a reorganization of his cabinet to face the intensified threat of Germany's drive to the west.

The statement said the reorganization had been accomplished with the inclusion of two extreme rightist ministers in the new cabinet.

The announcement followed an earlier statement that the resignation of 13 under-secretaries of state had been accepted.

Nazis in Limburg

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Cudahy, United States ambassador at Brussels, informed the state department just before noon today that German forces had overrun the whole of Luxembourg and all of Limburg, a province of Holland.

Drastic Action Need Says Retiring P.M.

LONDON (CP) — Winston Churchill tonight succeeded Neville Chamberlain as Britain's Prime Minister.

Speaking in an international broadcast a short time after his resignation as Prime Minister, Chamberlain said that "I had no doubt that some new and drastic action" would have to be taken to restore public confidence after this week's debate in the House of Commons.

"By today it was apparent that some unity could be attained under some other Prime Minister... My duty was plain. I saw His Majesty."

And so he resigned, he said, to be succeeded by Winston Churchill, who he had no doubt would be successful in forming a new government.

TO STAY IN CABINET

"Mr. Churchill has told me he would be glad if I would become a member of the new government, and I told him I would be happy to do so."

His voice was tense as he reviewed his work as Prime Minister and "the heavy load of anxiety" he had borne.

The Nazi invasion of Holland and Belgium, he continued, has now truly put the British nation to a test.

"And you and I must now put all our strength behind the new government . . . and we must fight until this savage beast who has sprung out of his lair at us is finally overthrown."

OFFICIAL

An official announcement said:

"The Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain resigned the office of Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury this evening and the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill accepted His Majesty's invitation to fill the position.

"The Prime Minister desires that all ministers should remain at their posts and discharge their functions with full freedom and responsibility while the necessary arrangements for the formation of a new administration are made."

The statement was issued from 10 Downing Street, the Prime Minister's residence.

It was read out in the press room of the Ministry of Information at 8.15 p.m. (11.15 a.m., P.S.T.), just 45 minutes before Mr. Chamberlain began his broadcast.

Chamberlain had been in office since May 28, 1937.

Churchill had been First Lord of the Admiralty since the outbreak of the war, returning to the post he held during the first Great War. He is 65.

At last, Prime Minister of Britain . . . Winston Churchill.

Chamberlain saw the King shortly after 6 p.m. (9 a.m., P.S.T. and remained at Buckingham Palace about 20 minutes.

The King then asked Churchill to form the new government.

Chamberlain announced his decision not to carry on at a meeting of the war cabinet, the third of the day.

He thanked his ministers for their loyalty during the arduous days of the past months.

The statement, issued in Bournemouth where the Labor Party is holding a regular conference, came shortly after Prime Minister Chamberlain, centre of controversy over the Allied withdrawal from Norway had arranged to see the King. (The Prime Minister arrived at Buckingham Palace at 5.52 p.m.)

"The national executive of the Labor Party," it said, "has unanimously decided to take its share of responsibility as a full partner in a new government under a new Prime Minister who would command the confidence of the nation."

Immediately after the decision was announced, Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, and Arthur Greenwood, his deputy, who conferred last night and today with Mr. Chamberlain, returned to London for a further conference with the Prime Minister.

Labor to Join In New Government

LONDON (CP) — The Labor executive committee tonight announced the Labor opposition in Parliament would join the British cabinet "under a new Prime Minister."

Armies Nearing Crucial Battle

PARIS (AP)—French military authorities reported tonight that Allied and German advance guards had entered into contact along the French-Luxemburg frontier.

The Germans, preceded by motorcycle troops and motorized infantry, pushed into the little Duchy of Luxembourg without interference, a military commentator told a press conference at the war ministry.

At the same time, however, the Allied war machine was rumbling north and east, the spokesman declared.

He said contact was established between opposing units.

British Forces Cross Into Belgium

WITH THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (CP) — British troops have crossed the Belgian frontier and are pressing forward to a new battlefront.

Belgians Halt Nazi Onrush

ROTTERDAM, the Netherlands (AP)—Germany's plane and parachute troops, attempting to fight their way through Rotterdam, were driven back into a dangerous position late today by the attacks of reinforced Dutch troops and the pounding of Dutch artillery.

Strong detachments of Netherlands marines made repeated rushes into the enemy positions on the River Nieuwe Maas and the fighting was fierce.

Dutch incendiary shells set fire to the large Maas Hotel from which the Germans were operating on the left bank of the stream, which divides Rotterdam.

The fire spread rapidly, threatening the thin German lines.

One German transport plane, alighting on the river, was damaged badly when it hit a boat

BRIDGE OCCUPIED

The troops occupied Rotterdam's Wallhaven airport, after first leveling it with a tremendous aerial bombardment; alighted on the Nieuwe Maas River in the centre of Rotterdam, occupied a big bridge across the river and captured the Maas railway station in the city.

Heavy fighting was going on in Rotterdam itself, with Dutch troops clinging tenaciously to the right bank of the Nieuwe Maas, which bisects the city.

On the other side of Holland, across the main water line now fed by wide open dikes, the Netherlands first line defenders were resisting a German land army which entered the country along the Rhine and swarmed ahead some 15 miles to the vicinity of the Ijssel River, near Arnheim.

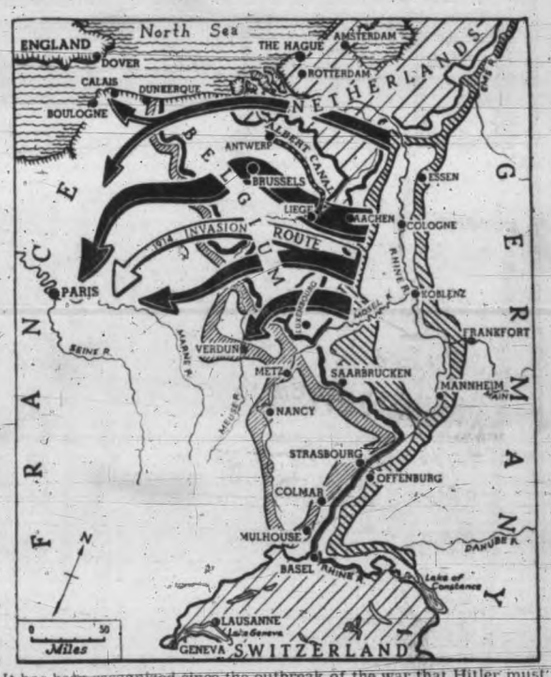
Queen Wilhelmina uttered a "flaming protest" against Germany, urged her nation to its duty and sought strong assistance from the British-French Allies.

They said they would help, and quickly. British and French planes were over the country long before noon, seeking the enemy. Allied troops and naval forces were confidently expected.

AERIAL ASSAULTS

It all was part of a vast, combined German offensive against Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg, combined with aerial assaults against both France and Britain.

The amazing methods of aerial warfare enabled the Germans to circumvent the entire Netherlands water and land defence system and move into this key city, scarcely more than 109 miles from the British coast and the home of 600,000 people.



It has been recognized since the outbreak of the war that Hitler must sooner or later seek a decision on the Western Front. He made his move early today, attacking the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. The above map shows Hitler's plans for his four major assaults, with the route which Von Kluck followed in his 1914 drive through Belgium.

CITY SURPRISED

Rotterdam was taken completely by surprise at 4 a.m. (7.40 p.m., P.S.T.) by the roar of hundreds of German planes over the city.

Virtually the entire population streamed into the streets in nightclothes.

The Waalhaven airport, south of the city, was converted into a series of craters by air bombs and the hangars knocked to the ground.

Although anti-aircraft batteries kept up a constant barrage, the Germans succeeded in landing their men by parachute and overwhelming the Dutch defenders.

Great German seaplanes alighted on the Nieuwe Maas, putting troops ashore in rubber boats, but the Germans were unable, for the time being, to penetrate the right bank of the river. German troops trying to advance along the left bank also were kept from crossing the stream by stubborn Dutch resistance.

The Dutch were entirely in control of the right bank early this afternoon. All drawbridges had been opened to prevent crossings. Barricades were thrown up in the streets. The Germans were using abandoned street cars for shelters.

The Germans who landed in the river had both light and heavy machine-guns. They easily disarmed the few Dutch soldiers guarding the big bridge and took the railway station on the left bank with little trouble.

A police inspector who was near the station drew a revolver and was shot down immediately. Other police were killed or wounded in trying to resist.

In Amsterdam, only an hour and a half motor trip northeast of Rotterdam the stock exchange was closed and the Dutch Nazi, and Communist newspapers were shut down by government order.

FRENCH TROOPS RUSH TO BELGIUM

PARIS (CP-Havas) — Premier Paul Reynaud in an address to the French nation tonight said that in response to a plea by Holland and Belgium for Allied aid "the soldiers of freedom have crossed their borders."

M. Reynaud announced that French troops had crossed the frontier into Belgium between 6 and 7 this morning.

He challenged directly Hitler's allegations that Germany had an old account to settle with France and pledged that the Allied troops would bring all possible assistance to the three countries invaded this morning.

Despite air raids by German bombing planes, M. Reynaud said France remains "calm and strong."

"Her troops know how to reply to the German attacks and will fight to the finish," he asserted.

R.A.F. Bombs Nazis On Dutch Airfields

LONDON (AP)—It was officially announced tonight the Royal Air Force had attacked enemy occupied airdromes in Holland.

The statement added:

"During last night, an aircraft dropped several incendiary bombs in a country district in Kent. It has now been established by examination that these bombs were of enemy origin."

Nazis Watch Envoys

BERLIN (AP)—The staffs of the Belgian and Dutch legations in Berlin were "invited" to assemble at one hotel and their movements restricted after the invasion started this morning, but nothing further has been learned of their whereabouts.

Armored Train Blown Up, 70 Nazi Planes Downed

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The Netherlands officially announced today that her defence forces had shot down at least 70 German planes, blown up a German armored train at Venlo and were offering strong resistance along rivers just inside the eastern part of the country from Germany.

The armored train, described as one of four "successfully attacked," was reported blown up while attempting to cross the Maas River bridge at Venlo, on the border between the province of Limburg and Germany.

The announcement said Netherlands troops had offered strong resistance to the invaders on the Ijssel and Maas Rivers, a short distance within the Netherlands, and maintained positions at Delfzijl.

BRITISH BAG PLANES

LONDON (CP)—An Air Ministry communique tonight said:

"Headquarters of the British air force in France announces:

"In the course of today's operations on the western front, the Royal Air Force has been constantly in action.

"Our reconnaissance aircraft have been operating over a wide area. Enemy troops have been attacked by our bomber squadrons. Wherever German bombers have been encountered, our fighter squadrons have engaged them.

"Reports indicate that in the course of these combats numerous enemy aircraft have been destroyed.

"Several of our airdromes have been bombed. Little damage has been done, and no lives have been lost."

Britain Calls R.A.F. Volunteers

LONDON (CP) — The Air Ministry today issued a call for volunteers.

It said it planned to establish "a pool of volunteers on which the Royal Air Force can draw as expansion proceeds for the training of air crews."

Brussels Bombed For Hour and Half

LONDON (CP)—The foreign office announced tonight that "a telephone conversation with Brussels late this afternoon stated the aerial bombardment had lasted one hour and a half this morning and that since then absolute calm has reigned."

"The damage done by the German bombers is slight; only a few houses were hit in the Avenue Louise and one factory is ablaze at Scharbeek, outside Brussels.

"The population in Brussels is cheerful and full of confidence in the Allies. Their morale is good and their anger at the Germans is strong."

Italy Waits, Watches

ROME (AP) — Italian newspapers announced the German invasion of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg today with streamer headlines.

"Allies beaten once again in swiftness," was one comment.

The Belgian ambassador, Count de Kerchove, saw Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. It was assumed the British and French ambassadors also would seek interviews.

The almost unanimous impression in diplomatic circles was that Premier Mussolini would keep Italy out of the war until its repercussions became apparent.

'The Hour Now Come' Fuehrer Tells Troops

BERLIN (CP-Havas) — Adolf Hitler has left for the Western Front, it was announced here today, presumably "to direct all military operations."

Addressing his troops before he left, Hitler said:

"Soldiers of the Western Front:

"The hour of the deciding fight for the future of the German nation has come.

"For 300 years it was the aim of the English and French rulers to prevent every real consolidation of Europe and, above all, to hold Germany in weakness and impotency. . . .

"For decades it has been the aim of British world rulers to keep Germany from unity, to deny the Reich every earthly possession which is necessary to the preservation of a nation of 80,000,000 people. . . .

"England and France have carried through this policy of theirs without worrying about the regime which happened to rule in Germany at the time.

"What they (Britain and France) wanted to strike was always the German people.

"Their responsible men admit this goal quite openly.

"Germany shall be dashed to pieces and reduced to small states. With that the Reich will lose its political power and with it the possibility of securing for the German people their living rights on this earth.

"PEACE OVERTURES" FAILED

"For this reason all my peace overtures have been rejected and war was declared on us September 3 of last year.

"The German people has no hatred, no inimical feeling toward the English or French people.

"It stands, however, before the question whether it will live or perish. . . .

"Now what we have seen for many months as a threatening danger for us has happened. England and France are attempting, by employment of a gigantic manoeuvre of distraction in southeast Europe, to thrust forward into the Ruhr district over Holland and Belgium.

"Soldiers of the west front, the hour for you has now come.

"The fight beginning today decides the fate of the German nation for the next 1,000 years.

"Do your duty now!

"The German people, with its best wishes, is with you.

"(Signed) Adolf Hitler."

HEADQUARTERS MOVING

The high command communique, issued every forenoon, was datelined today from the "Fuehrer's headquarters," and said:

"In view of the immediately impending extension of the war area by evening into Belgian and Dutch territory and the threat to the Ruhr territory connected therewith, the German western army at daybreak May 10 started over the German western borders along the broadest front for attack.

"Simultaneously, the air force attacked an enemy airport with great success and strong units have taken a hand in land fighting in support of ground troops.

"To conduct general operations of the defence force, the Fuehrer and supreme commander has gone to the front."

Gas Bills Endorsed

Special Session To End Today

The special session of the British Columbia Legislature dealing with the gasoline problem will be prorogued by tonight with the government's two control bills receiving endorsement.

This was indicated this morning as the House pushed ahead with second reading debate on the bill which will enable the government to force the distribution of gasoline if the companies refuse to maintain an adequate supply.

In a test vote on this measure this morning the House rejected 33 to 8 a Conservative motion for a six month's hoist. With the C.C.F. supporting the government against six Conservatives and two Liberals this was interpreted as meaning the bill will go through without major changes. The bill giving power to enter the gasoline business was endorsed last night.

This afternoon the House will put both government bills through committee stage.

Seven speakers contributed to the debate this morning with Conservative leader R. L. Maitland, K.C., pressing against government interference in business, and Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, declaring Conservatives always rushed to the defence of the big interests.

One of the final acts of the session this afternoon will be introduction of a bill giving the members a $200 indemnity each for attendance in place of the usual $2,000 indemnity for a regular session.

No More R.A.F. Leaves

LONDON (CP) — All members of the Royal Air Force on leave were ordered today to rejoin their units immediately.

French Troops Rush to Mons

Leopold Leads Fighting Belgians

LONDON (CP)—Nazi Germany unleased lightning air and land attacks on Belgium, the Netherlands and tiny Luxembourg early today, adding a vast new lowland front to the titanic struggle which already had directly embroiled six European nations.

Holland opened her flood gates in hope of repelling the German invaders.

Belgium mustered her entire strength, hopeful of preventing a repetition of the 1914 German sweep which carried grey-glad German legions into France.

Germany's air force was striking at strategic points in Belgium and the Netherlands, raiding far behind the French lines and making forays as far as the British coast, seeking to carry out frequently-voiced German threats of "total war" at the proper time.

German parachute troops plummeted to earth from Nazi transport planes behind the Belgian and Dutch lines, German bombers raided the Brussels airport and other points, while land forces struck at the frontiers of the two nations.

TAKES COMMAND

King Leopold III of the Belgians immediately took command of his nation's fighting forces, numbering about 600,000 men, who had strong fortifications prepared against such an invasion as came today.

Initial reports from Luxembourg, the tiny grand duchy wedged among Germany, France and Belgium, said the government was reported to have fled in anticipation of German attack.

The Belgian government declared its capital, Brussels, was an "open city"—unfortified—and thus not subject to attack, although German bombers already had raided the Brussels airport.

British dispatches said 400 dead and wounded resulted from the raid.

The Belgians asserted no troops would be allowed to pass through the capital. They hoped to save it from the ravages of war.

Civilians streamed out of Amsterdam, fearful of imminent attack. Highways were closed with autos and other vehicles piled high with bedding and other household goods.

RAIDERS DRIVEN OFF

German raiding planes were driven off Dover, English Channel port, other points on the southeast coast and the Thames estuary. An authoritative source said one raider was hit.

The British Ministry of Home Defence warned all civilian air raid defence units to be on the alert for attack.

Paris was under air raid alarm for one hour and 48 minutes. German planes bombed the De Bron airport at Lyons, in south central France, and one invader was shot down. All French fighting forces were called to the alert.

From the western war front came reports the Royal Air Force had shot down five German bombers in resisting raids on British air bases.

Householders in Britain were told to overhaul their domestic arrangements against air attacks.

Commentators described the Germans' drive on the Lowlands, which opened their flank, as an attempt to get a quick decision to escape strangulation by the Allied blockade.

Belgians Halt Nazi Onrush

By ROBERT OKIN

BRUSSELS (AP) — The German land forces have been stopped within a few hundred yards of the frontier after entering Belgium as part of Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg against the Low Countries, the foreign ministry announced today.

Defence Minister Henri Denis told the Chamber of Deputies that, at noon, the Germans were halted everywhere on the Belgian defensive lines. He said he was convinced the Germans had failed to obtain their first objective and had failed to gain the initial success they expected."

Premier Hubert Pierlot told the House that King Leopold had expected to make an address, but had taken his place as commander-in-chief with the army in the front lines, as his father did 25 years ago.

The Germans were halted by Belgian troops entrenched behind the "demolition line," a first defence area of destroyed bridges and roads and other barriers.

ALLIED OFFICERS AT BRUSSELS

French and British liaison officers reached Brussels for contacts with the Belgian general staff six hours after Belgium had asked her old allies of 1914 for aid against the new German invasion. Belgians cheered the arrival of the first cars flying Allied flags.

Brussels was bombed this morning and had three air raid alarms in the early afternoon.

DEATH TOLL

The first wave of Nazi bombers took a toll of at least seven killed and 80 wounded throughout the country.

CHILDREN KILLED

Two children were killed and 50 persons wounded in an air raid on Brussels. The Brussels airport also was bombed.

Bombs fell on numerous railway stations in the heart of the country.

A hospital for the insane at Mortsel was reported to have been set afire by bombs. (This report was denied in Germany.)

NOT TO BE CONQUERED

After the first bombing of Brussels, German Ambassador von Bulow-Schwante delivered to Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak a note saying a "tremendous" German army was marching into Belgium, neighboring Holland and Luxembourg to forestall an Allied attack.

The note asked the Belgians not to resist and promised to preserve their country.

Even before the ambassador spoke, M. Spaak reported "the answer is negative," and handed him a note saying Belgium would defend herself against an invasion worse than that of 1914. She "cannot be vanquished," he said.

"Brussels has been attacked by air despite being an open city deprived of military," said the Foreign Minister, "and no troops will march across it."

Since the first wave, Brussels itself has not been bombed, however. Three air raid alarms were sounded. Twenty-nine German planes were reported over the province of Brabant and others over Limbourg, both adjoining the Netherlands border. Anti-aircraft fire could be heard.

German diplomats were confined to their embassy, near which a bomb fell this morning, and all other Germans in the capital—several thousand — were arrested.

The government warned that German paratchute troops had been landed in northern Belgium and told the people to watch out for them and for saboteurs.

German airmen raided Antwerp and Jemelle, an important railway centre in the southeast on the main line between Brussels and Luxembourg. Aerial fights were reported over Tournai, 45 miles west of Brussels.

BELGIANS FLY FLAGS

(Belgian radio broadcasts heard in London said the Chamber of Deputies had voted 154 to 1, to give the government full powers. There were no abstemtions).

Censorship which was imposed during the night was relaxed about 7 this morning, but all communications were ordered cut again at 9.30 a.m. The government office was surrounded by guards.

Holiday Canceled

LONDON (CP)—Arrangements made at the Woolwich Arsenal for the Whitsuntide holiday were suddenly changed and a number of workers were ordered to come in to work through the week-end.

All workers at the arsenal would normally have stopped work at noon today and come back Tuesday. It was announced, however, that part of the army artillery service personnel would work throughout the holiday.

'Flaming Protest' From Holland

THE HAGUE (AP)—Within a few short hours after the first German troops had crossed the border and the Netherlands inundated strategic areas for defence, Queen Wilhelmina broadcast a proclamation over the Hilversum radio. She said:

"To my people!

"Despite the fact that our country all these months has maintained strict neutrality with the utmost conscientiousness, and whereas it had no other intention than to maintain this neutrality strictly and in all its consequences, German troops last night made without any warning a sudden attack on our territory, and that despite a solemn promise that the neutrality of our country would be respected so long as we maintained it ourselves.

"I am making herewith a flaming protest against this unexampled violation of good faith and what is considered decent between civilized nations.

'I and my government will do our duty now, too. Do yours everywhere and under all circumstances, everyone in the place to which he is assigned, with utmost watchfulness, and with inner calmness and devotion to which a pure conscience entitles us."

Envoy in Narrow Escape

LONDON (CP)—An unofficial British statement today said The Hague, seacoast capital of the Netherlands, had been bombed by the German invaders.

"Our air attache at The Hague was nearly killed by a bomb which fell close to the Foreign Office early this morning," the statement said.

Force Garrisons Northern Island

Britain Protects Iceland From Nazis

LONDON (CP)—A British armed force today extended protection to Iceland, North Atlantic island, which was united by the tie of the crown to Denmark, now occupied by Germany. The force will be withdrawn when the war is over.

Iceland, which has an area of 40,000 square miles, is expected to provide the Allies with excellent submarine bases as well as seaplane and airplane bases.

It was disclosed that R. C. Harris of the ministry of economic warfare arrived in Iceland today with Charles Howard, Icelandic charge d'affaires in London.

WATCH GERMANY

The foreign office issued the following announcement:

"Since the German seizure of Denmark it has become necessary to reckon with the possibility of a sudden German descent upon Iceland.

"It is clear that in the face of an attack on Iceland even on a very small scale the Icelandic government would be unable to prevent their country falling completely into German hands.

"His Majesty's government have accordingly decided to preclude this possibility, which would deprive Iceland of her independence, by themselves landing a force in Iceland. This operation was carried out this morning.

"His Majesty's government have given explicit guarantees to the Icelandic Government that this force has been landed to ensure the security of Iceland against a German invasion and that any further measures that may have to be taken will be designed for that purpose. This force will be withdrawn upon the conclusion of hostilities.

NO GOVERNMENT CHAGE

"His Majesty's Government have made it plain to the Icelandic government that they have no intention or desire to interfere with the existing administration of the island, and further, that they are prepared at once to negotiate with the Icelandic government an agreement on trade matters which it is anticipated will bring material advantage to the inhabitants."

The only defence force at disposal of Icelandic authorities consisted of about 70 police.

Before the war Germany made a practice of frequently sending expeditions to Iceland nominally for scientific purposes and in connection with projected air routes. When war broke out there was in Iceland a considerably larger number of Germans than was justified by purely commercial considerations, British said. Since the war began this number was augmented by the crews of several shipwrecked German vesels.

Though Iceland had been united with Denmark in allegiance to the same king, the north Atlantic kingdom has been acting as an independent nation since shortly after the German invasion of Denmark.

On April 10, simultaneously with an announcement from the Allies that they would prevent any German landing on Iceland, Greenland or Denmark's Faroe Islands, Iceland's parliament took full control of the nation's affairs. Finding it was impossible for King Christian to exercise his royal powers, parliament, entrusted the ministry of Iceland "with the conduct of such powers until further notice."

FAROES GUARDED

It was only a day later, on April 11, that Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, informed the House of Commons that Britain was occupying the Faroe Islands and that "no German will be allowed to set his foot there with impunity." At the time Mr. Churchill added that the islands would be returned to Denmark when she had been "liberated from the foul thraldom into which she has been plunged by German aggression."

Iceland, a sovereign state since the signing of the Danish-Icelandic Union Act in 1918, lies in the north Atlantic, 200 miles off the coast of Greenland, 2,500 miles northeast of New York and about 900 miles west of Bergen, Norway. Shaped somewhat like a giant flounder, its area is 40,000 square miles.

Battle May Exceed All in History

PARIS (AP)—As British and French troops were authoritatively reported moving rapidly across the Belgian border to meet the German army which had entered from the east, a Paris military spokesman today said the biggest battle of history may be near at hand.

The spokesman said the Germans must have one of two military purposes in mind. Declaring it was difficult at the moment to determine the exact objectives, the spokesman said the Germans might be trying:

1. An operation to gain control of a long strip of coastline facing England, or

2. A vast strategical movement of invasion comparable to and infinitely larger than that carried out by the German troops across Belgium in 1914.

In the latter case, he said, "we are at the beginning of the most gigantic battle of all time."

The Belgian army was reported to be busy mopping up small detachments of German parachutists who had landed on Belgian territory.

PLANES BAGGED

Several German planes were shot down from the numerous squadrons which flew over Belgium.

The war department spokesman said there was as yet no precise information in Paris of the exact line of march of the Germans.

The Germans, he continued, were following the usual tactics of sending shock forces in advance, preceded by intense aerial bombardment of roads, bridges, railroads and air fields.

The bombardments, he stated, were on a vast scale in "Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France, those in France being notably in the eastern and northern areas."

Notes from Belgium and Luxembourg appealing for French and British aid were made public by the foreign minister at noon.

The Belgian note said:

"The Belgian government is determined to resist the aggression with all its force.

"The government of the king is firmly confident that, as in the past, the joint efforts of France, England and Belgium will assure triumph of the right."

Premier Paul Reynaud, reporters said, was holding conferences with the idea of altering the make-up of his cabinet.

Muskrat Industry Planned in Manitoba

THE PAS, Man. (CP)—The Manitoba government has under consideration a 10-year program of development which will make possible the trapping each year of approximately 1,500,000 muskrats in the Saskatchewan River delta area.

Announcing the plan, Premier John Bracken said such an industry "would provide a payroll for the community adjacent to The Pas exceeding $2,000,000 a year."

The successful development of the Barry Game Preserve, involving 130,000 acres of marshland just north of The Pas, is only the first step in developing the whole Saskatchewan River delta—an area eight times its size, he said.

Five years ago there were practically no muskrats in that area. It is now estimated that as a result of the conservation work done, the rat population before present trappings started was 300,000.

Total War

LONG BEFORE THE OUTBREAK OF hostilities last September the world had heard and read a good deal about "total war." In the last eight months this particular type of human conflict has intrigued most men's minds. The invasion of Denmark and Norway gave us a foretaste of its reality. Today's events have brought us squarely up against the magnitude of the German plan and the means by which it evidently is about to be prosecuted. The battlefront now stretches from a point on the west coast of Norway down to the Swiss frontier. How long it will be before the Mediterranean sphere adds to the meaning of "total war" is a question that time alone can answer.

It would be futile to minimize the importance and seriousness of the latest German violation of territorial integrity. Hitler's forces naturally will command for the time being strategic advantages of which the fullest possible use will be made. But the Nazi High Command already is finding a situation in Holland and Belgium totally different from that which had been craftily created over a fairly lengthy period in Norway. Not only were the two principal countries whose neutrality has been so ruthlessly brushed aside prepared for almost any eventuality—recent dispatches bear this out—their geographical position has enabled the Allies to go to their assistance promptly and with sufficient equipment at least to delay the invader's progress until the essential adjustments can be made.

As this is written the indications are that the German air force will employ without scruple all the diabolical tactics of which this arm of the military is capable. But it should not be forgotten that if Hitler authorizes a "full-out" aerial bombardment, irrespective of the nature of the targets at which aim is to be taken, Britain and France—even though their combined strength in bombing and other types of planes may be inferior to that of the Reich—will not hesitate to reply in kind. Not that the destruction of the towers of Cologne Cathedral, the flattening out of the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, or the penetration of the Goethe Haus in Frankfort-on-the-Main would be anything like as useful as a few accurately-placed bombs on the home of the Krupps in Essen, or on any of the huge establishments of heavy industry in the Ruhr basin. But until the war as other peoples already have experienced it, war in all its ghastliness, has been literally taken to the doors of the German people, the incentive for Hitler to out-Hitler himself will still dominate this madman.

These are the immediate considerations of attack and counter attack. Fortunately for the Allies, and the world at large, there are others more vital that will confront the aggressor in the final analysis. Adolf Hitler's record is now being subjected to a more penetrating scrutiny than ever before. He can prate of the success of his "Blitzkrieg" in the Low Countries; he can enjoy the temporary fruits of his villainy. But the day is not far off when he will be compelled to recognize the fundamental fact that he cannot defeat that very considerable part of the moral and material world which still puts a high value on honest dealing. His "total eclipse" will follow his "total war."

A New Government

WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL HAS accepted the King's invitation to form a government to replace that whose term ended tonight with the resignation of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. Whom the new leader will select to surround him in his ministry was not known as this is written. It is certain, however, he will invite members of the Labor and Liberal opposition to assist him. In both parties are men of high repute and wide experience whose sole purpose, sole objective, is the winning of the war. At no time during the two-day debate which revealed the parliamentary weakness of the administration were these representatives of the public actuated by any other motive. And it is the interest and safety of the nation which rise above all else at this stage.

Mr. Chamberlain followed the path of wisdom when he surrendered the reins of office. For some time he had been confronted with a situation which had grown increasingly uncomfortable for him and threatened to intensify the doubts and suspicions reflected by the attitude of a large section of press and public. His has been a thankless task almost from the time he succeeded to the office nearly three years ago. Crisis after crisis has followed with monotonous regularity. Dissension in his own ranks, blistering criticism of vital foreign policy, and then war; these furnished a combination of circumstances calculated to baffle the most resolute mind and the ripest experience. This is not the time to indulge in any speculation of what might have been, not the time to render judgment on the actions of a public servant whose personal sincerity and integrity are above reproach; it is the time to wish well the men who are now to direct Britain's contribution to the cause they and the world know is just.

Hitler might avoid some criticism if he would use a disappearing ink when he signs those nonaggression pacts.

Despicable Lies

GERMANY'S ATTEMPTED JUSTIFICATION for invading Holland, Belgium and Luxemburg, her pretense that she gave her orders to her armed forces because she feared imminent attack by the Allies through the Low Countries, will be taken no more seriously by the peoples of peace-loving nations than similar protestations which have come from the foul-mouthed Goebbels and the brutally-unscrupulous Von Ribbentrop on former occasions. The world was told how the Austrians were plotting the Reich's destruction, how "attacks" from Czechoslovakians were becoming a serious menace to German security, how the Nazi government was continually receiving accounts of "brutal atrocities" against its nationals in Poland and in border areas. All this was part of the diabolical plan laid down in Hitler's "Mein Kampf," graphically illustrated by the famous map which foreshadowed the gradual absorption of European states—afterward subjected to alteration by the actual course of events. Hence the technique which marked the destruction of Danish and Norwegian neutrality; the charge that the Nazi hierarchy had "knowledge" the Allies intended to attack these territories in order to effect a flanking movement against Germany. Still three more states have now been violated on the same utterly groundless assumption.

As far back as last November competent authorities exposed the German plan to invade the Lowlands. Two considerations compelled Hitler himself, only at the last moment, to cancel the instructions he had given to the Nazi High Command. One was the unexpected announcement that both the Dutch and Belgian monarchs had agreed to fight if their respective territory were violated. The other was a bitter disagreement among the German generals, Colonel-General von Brauchitsch telling Hitler he would not assume responsibility for such a scheme, while General von Reichenau stood ready to obey orders, but the nature of the undertaking obliged him to warn the Fuehrer that he would "invite death at the head of his troops in case of failure." The zero hour in the early morning of November 12 passed—with the peace of the Low Countries temporarily undisturbed. It was nevertheless the signal for them to prepare for any eventuality. But in looking to their protection they have scrupulously, under intense provocation at times, preserved their neutrality in word and deed, dealing with occasional violations by Germany and Allies alike without fear or favor. Hitler had waited; it was time to execute the long-hatched plot; zero hour came today and the madman launched his new program of conquest.

Trust Busting

SINCE THE FIRST JOHN D. ROCKEFELler brought discipline into the oil industry in the 1870's, governments that have sought to regulate the oil trust in the public interest have taken on a big order. The United States government a few years ago, in the greatest of all anti-trust actions, succeeded in having the Supreme Court sustain a dissolution order against the original Standard Oil Company. The result, however, was only to break the original trust into smaller sectional organizations. These at once proceeded to become in the aggregate more powerful than the parent Rockefeller company had ever been before dissolution.

Thus, we find governments still trying to break the monopolistic control in the oil industry. Ten midwestern states have been proceeding against 12 major oil companies for conspiring to control and by concerted action to raise prices of gasoline. The Supreme Court of the United States, last Tuesday, delivered judgment sustaining the lower courts' findings that the oil companies in their price-fixing agreements had contravened the Sherman anti-trust law.

The British Columbia government in its efforts to control gasoline prices and distribution and to invoke the federal Combines Act is bringing into Canada the war against the world oil trust. Other governments periodically gain legal victories, but the all-powerful oil organization pretty much goes on its way with actual powers unshorn. Will our government succeed where others have little gains to show for their battles?

KEEP VALIANT HEARTS

From Cowichan Leader

The glory of the navy's accomplishment in smashing a major portion of the Nazi fleet is not dimmed, nor its importance minimized, but the extravagant statements of British ministers about the Norwegian campaign and the help the Allies would give to Norway can be remembered only with a blush. At the time it did not sound quite like the British way.

As for the actual reverse, when the facts are reviewed, the Allies can scarcely be blamed. It is amazing to think that Norway could have been overrun with such ease when the British Navy dealt the attacker so tremendous a blow. Yet Norway was unable to hold one good port or one good airfield upon which the Allies could base a campaign. With no hope of successfully combating German air supremacy obtained by the control of strategic bases, it could hardly be expected that the Allies should send in troops indiscriminately, to be slaughtered in a one-sided struggle. Had Norway held one good port where the Allies could have poured in modern war equipment and fighter aircraft, the story would have been vastly different.

We must remember that we are fighting against a well-armed, well-trained and very determined enemy. We must expect that in the price to be paid for victory must be included some reverses. We must prepare ourselves to face a reverse with calmness and unalterable faith. We must avoid defeatism. There is no need for pessimism. That the war will be of growing intensity, however, becomes daily more apparent.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

GRISLY SHAPE

YOU COULD SEE a grisly shadow athwart the Legislature yesterday. It was the grinning shadow of the next provincial election, coming closer every day, now scarce 12 months distant. You could hear its hollow footsteps approaching in every speech. You could get whiffs of it on the breeze.

All parties were preparing for it, taking their stand, digging in, putting themselves on record. Thus the gasoline debate became quickly a battle of giants, a high argument of principle, an historic occasion. Everybody seemed to feel the importance of it, to feel the hand of history heavy on his shoulder, as if we were about to usher in the revolution by statue, over night.

Only the Premier took it in his stride, as part of the day's work. He has given up oration altogether, which is a pity, for he used to do it so well in opposition. Now he talks as if this historic occasion were only an argument among friends, proclaims himself an "individualist" (which no one will ever deny), but is prepared to exercise government control over business wherever it is essential.

It is all quite simple to him and he seems to wonder at all the fuss; all part of the day's work. Perhaps he does not realize that he hangs, like every democratic ruler in the world, on the horns of history's greatest dilemma.

He is trying, unconsciously or not, to build a new order while carrying on the old, to reconstruct the house while still living in it—and with no clear idea what he is building, with no definite plan, with no notion of the materials he has at hand, with no idea what the family wants. He is in the same position as every other democratic politician and the gasoline business is only one tiny phase of his problem.

KING CHARLES' HEAD

MR. MAITLAND, however, is not taking it as part of the day's work. He sees in this gasoline legislation his main chance. He sees the shape of the next election before him, and he leans out to grasp it. He finds at last what he believes to be an issue where there has never been any of importance between him and this government.

Mr. Maitland's speech is good, spectacular, well prepared and cogently argued. He takes a high ground and stands by the ancient authorities, by ancient freedom, by principles for which our ancestors died. His speech is littered with English history, with Cromwell, King Charles' head and William and Mary. In brief, he is against giving the government more power, building up a servile state, a kind of British Columbia totalitarianism, a political machine which by intimidation of citizens, can keep itself in office forever.

It is a fine speech, a complete repudiation of the Bennett government and its New Deal, which he supported, at utter variance with the policy of his party in federal politics and sounds strange from the man who was the original architect and advocate of marketing control legislation which was the beginning of all our present efforts to control business.

That is no matter. Mr. Maitland has the right to change his mind. He has the courage to break with past policies and old mistakes, to differ with his federal party, which is essentially the party of controls, bonuses, subsidies, tariffs and interference with business. It is no matter because all parties are mixed up in their thinking and all parties and governments, including this one, are not acting on any definite theory but doing only what seems to be a good idea at the time.

HUMAN BEINGS

MR. WISMER appears as the government's champion and does his usual competent rough-hewn job—very logical, very emphatic and very human. He is not much interested in history or theory, this very human person. He does what seems to be a good idea at the time and as gasoline prices must be reduced his idea is to reduce them and not worry about King Charles' head or the approaching revolution.

For Mr. Wismer everything is going to turn out all right in the end. Life isn't a battle as it is for Mr. Pattullo, nor an argument as it is for Mr. Maitland, nor a fine frenzy as it is for Mr. Winch. Life for Mr. Wismer is a lark and he goes through it whistling, and though he may have to pause for an unpleasant interruption like this gasoline business, he will stroll on again tomorrow, whistling as ever, admiring the scenery, smelling the flowers and gamboling on the green with the other ever-boyish spirits of the time.

Mr. Winch makes easily the best speech of the day for the reason that he knows exactly what he is talking about. He has facts. He has studied with midnight oil until he is tired and gaunt and burning up with a fever of knowledge. Too much fact by far, one of his worse faults, until the mind reels and his point is overlaid with a pale cast of thought. But one point is clear. He believes the price of gasoline is still far too high and he would socialize the business, eliminate many of the distributors and maintain them otherwise by means not clear. The same with other business, all business; and when asked whether he would compensate the owners he dodges the answer by proclaiming the large proposition that the C.C.F. will do what has to be done by the best means when the time comes. Which, says Mr. Maitland, means nothing. But shows that Mr. Winch is acquiring the sure technique of a party leader.

LIBERAL

MR. PERRY, AS USUAL, steals the picture at the last minute. Without warning, this unreconstructed little rebel from the north leaps to his feet to oppose his own government. It is an old role with him. Mr. Perry's whole career is strewn with the bones of his many fights with his own party which is always interesting but doesn't get a man into a cabinet.

Mr. Perry proclaims himself a Liberal. He is one of the few men in this House who knows what that means. In fact, Mr. Perry announces that he is the only Liberal in his party, which, by his definition, is probably true. As a Liberal he is opposed to government in business, opposed to interference with the individual, and believes that capitalism is the best system for society. And he is perfectly consistent in his argument that if the government is going into the gasoline business it should certainly go into the milk business, the sugar business, the baking business, for they are more important to the people.

Working himself up into a very ecstasy of Manchester Liberalism, with the ghost of Gladstone at his elbow, Mr. Perry announces that if he were to vote for the government's gasoline bill he would have to join the C.C.F. in common honesty. If this is to be the government's idea of Liberalism, he cries, let us have a party convention and redefine our policy so we know where we stand.

It is a fine effort, but Mr. Perry is too wise, too well-informed to have any real illusions, to feel any real surprise. He knows that the battle has gone steadily against him for a generation or more, that everywhere nations are following the present general line of the Pattullo government, by a universal urge and necessity and he cries out in agony and in warning to the C.C.F. that we are not moving into socialism, but into Fascism, the corporative state on Italian lines. A warning which few men here have the necessary knowledge to understand.

The evening session developed a minor Liberal revolt when four Liberals, Messrs. Perry, Gillis, Lebourdais and Henniger announced their opposition to the bill and to their own government—four lonely souls who adhere to historic Liberalism even if it has long been dead in these parts. It was no use, of course, except for the purpose of record and conscience. The government's legislation survived a motion to reject it and carried over the sole opposition of the Conservatives.

But not before Dr. Telford had made a lengthy and elaborate speech which revealed him as a believer in government ownership but not ownership by this government; revealed him also in a new geniality, all his old bitterness gone—for all the world like an elderly white-haired cupid, full of jolly mischief.

Dr. Gillis opposed the legislation because he is opposed to it, Mr. Lebourdais because his constituents are opposed to it, and Mr. Cameron wound up a hard day by warning of the revolution ahead of us in a fashion to make your flesh creep.

RED RIDDLE

EIGHT MONTHS after the beginning of the second Great War and the second great unknown factor remains the attitude of Soviet Russia. Stated otherwise, the future outcome of this war depends almost more than anything else on what Joe Stalin decides to do. The one exception, the greater unknown factor, is what the United States will do, or not do.

It is strange that the removal of Generalissimo Kliment E. Voroshilov from his post of defence commissar should have aroused so little interest in the world at large. For by every measurement Voroshilov has been No. 2 man in the Soviet Union for years back. Like Litvinov, he has not yet been "liquidated." He has rather been treated as the Americans so often treat those whom they want to oust from power but without too obvious a loss of face. They "promote" the victim to be vice-president," and he is never heard of again. So apparently with Voroshilov, who made the chief speech on May 1 in Moscow. In that speech, incidentally, Voroshilov declared that the Soviet was just "remaining aloof" in this war. Exactly what that means no one could know even before Stalin kicked Voroshilov upstairs. The mystery is deeper now.

RUSSIA'S INVASION of Finland now looks less stupid, if no less sinister, than it did before Hitler's invasion of Norway. If Russia had been given advance notice of Hitler's intentions in Scandinavia, under the terms of the pact of last August, it is at least understandable that the Reds might say: "Well, if you are going to go that far we will move our first line of defence just a little further from Leningrad than it is now, in case you Nazis should revert to type again and decide that your ultimate prize lay in the east and not the west."

It was just before the first move against Finland that at least two extremely influential Canadians were publicly urging a transformation of this war into one in which the democracies would join with Germany to invade Russia and purge Communism from the world. The most pathetic feature of such utterances, here and everywhere, is that their authors never seem to understand that they are heard and understood in Moscow.

I am no apologist for the Reds, and think it extremely probable that before this war is over we will have to fight the Russians as well as the Nazis. But I think we would be absolutely insane to fight the Russians if we are not forced to fight by the actions of the Russians themselves.

TIME, THE NEWS magazine, figures that Russia is keeping two strings to her bow: That her first choice is to have western Europe fight a long and exhausting war, which would leave Russia safe meanwhile and maybe fall heir to some possessions orphaned by the war. The second choice would be that taken if it appears certain that Germany is going to win the war. In that case the Soviet would go along with the Nazis, and take a cut of the spoils in the approved gangster fashion.

The latter coincides with my own long-standing guess. I think the real basis of parallel action by Germany, Italy, Russia and possibly even Japan, is that each of them would have most to gain, in the way of material possessions, by the break-up of the democratic world supremacy in general, and the break-up of the British Empire in particular. It is Britain, France and Holland who stand between the land-hungry nations and the prizes on which their eyes are fixed. The Soviet is not land hungry in the same sense as is Italy or Japan. But the Communists have not given up their program of world domination, and as a result of the events of the past year they are far closer to it than ever before.

SHOPS CLOSE IN REICH

Some years before the war an enterprising Hamburg merchant was expanding a system of chain store similiar to the "Five and Ten" shops in the United States; those in Prague, Warsaw and Danzing were particularly successful because they were near to the places where the "notions" and small wares were made.

When the war came the merchant sold out his stocks at auction, the small shops, which had been threatened with extinction by his enterprise, reaping, for a time, a prodigious benefit. Now, they, too, are passing, for their stocks cannot be renewed. The Danziger Vorposten thus explains the situation under the heading "Shops Sold Out: What Next?"

"At the beginning of Christmas week all stores and shops in big German cities were cleared of goods. In previous years every tradesman would have been exceptionally pleased, but this year he can only stand before his empty shelves with tears in his eyes and ask himself anxiously, 'Where can I get new stock?'

"In many branches there is no satisfactory answer to this question. In war, production has other tasks than in peace. Tradesmen cannot fill their shelves and the consumer must adapt himself."

THEY DON'T UNDERSTAND

From Ottawa Citizen

Japanese astonishment at the United States refusal to interfere with new Philippine immigration laws is probably quite sincere.

That a great country which has had possession of a smaller one should actually relax its grip and grant greater rather than less freedom is, of course, strangely out of key with the way things are going today.

Similar is the equally genuine astonishment in Germany and Italy when an American newspaper has printed something they do not like. They protest to the State Department, and do not quite understand that the State Department or the government in general has nothing to say about it, can do nothing. So far apart have drifted the two ways of looking at the relationship between people and their government, between great peoples and small!

The only way to have a friend is to be one.—Emerson.

Letters to the Editor

GASOLINE

To the Editor:—You assert that "it is safe to assume that the majority of the people of this province will endorse the Premier's decision" to summon the legislature, etc. The assumption is baseless, for it is obvious that this solves no "problem," and that the oil companies have acted rightly, for although the government has the power to regulate selling prices, nobody is compelled to sell at prices so fixed.

Certainly the Premier and Controller, if engaged in manufacture, would be the last persons to submit to unjust dictation. The action of the government is contrary to the spirit of the court's injunction, which could not be extended beyond the date of the Supreme Court decision, since there was no certainty of any appeal to the Privy Council.

As counsel for the oil companies has shown, the government undertook not to "make the order effective," if upheld by the court, until it was reviewed in consultation with the industry. The cessation of the sale of gasoline resulted from the flagrant breach of this undertaking, for which no excuse has been attempted or is possible.

The Premier exhorts the public to "exercise patience," but has signally failed to exhibit the virtue he preaches. That the existing order is inequitable is sufficiently evidenced by the fact it was made in August, since when prices have risen considerably, including the cost of the American dollar. You invite us to be "patient for some time," but if the government, with Communist backing, goes into the oil business, it will be a matter of months or years. Liquor control is cited as a precedent, but the government does not manufacture liquor; all it has done is to increase the price, and this in due course will happen in the case of gasoline.

Finally the government, whose first duty is to its own citizens, deprives them of the right to buy at a price they would willingly pay, while tourists and civil servants obtain cheap supplies. And to add insult to injury we are told that we "support the government" by submitting to its tyranny, whereas in fact it is venting on the public its annoyance at the refusal of the oil companies to submit to manifest injustice. Allowing for heavy taxation, gasoline prices compare favorably with those of any other commondity or utility, particularly coal, electricity and telephone, as to which justified complaint is ignored.

Yours etc.,
A. B. SANDERS.

TWO REPORTS

To the Editor:—Two items of general interest call for comment. The first is your report on the Oak Bay Provincial Conservative Association meeting with reference to the oil dispute, and the second a letter from Lt.-Col. F. W. L. Moore under the heading "An A.R.P. Meeting."

I attended both these meetings and can advise you definitely that the Times' report on the first is decidedly incomplete, and therefore totally misleading. The Oak Bay body certainly expressed satisfaction on the prompt settlement of the oil dispute, and while commending the provincial government for its part in this settlement, expressed very strongly its disapproval of the action of any responsible government allowing such a situation to develop, particularly at a time when every effort should be made to direct public attention towards the paramount problem of winning the war. This is a slightly different report on the meeting compared to the one published in the Times.

A further question brought out at both meetings was omitted by the Times and overlooked by Col. Moore. This was the request for information concerning a paid appointment to the provincial A.R.P. organization. Severe but obviously sincere criticism of the Dominion government was freely expressed by several officials on the platform and it became apparent to most of those present that Victoria was receiving very little, if any, real help or encouragement from Ottawa. As far as one could learn, the provincial government's effort to date consists in presenting the A.R.P. organization with a paid adviser; this particular action is considered by many wardens as totally unnecessary and in bad taste. If the provincial government really felt that such an appointment would be desirable, quite a number of efficient men within the A.R.P. organization would, I am sure, have gladly offered their services on a voluntary basis.

I feel that all officials and wardens as far as Victoria is concerned are anxious to keep this essential organization free from the disturbing influence of political patronage.

Personally, I did not experience Col. Moore's reaction to Mr. Harrison's talk on the preservation of our forests and scenic beauty, nor I am sure did many others. On the contrary I thoroughly enjoyed the lecture and the magnificent slides shown by Mr. Harrison, and I sincerely hope that every citizen who has the interest of this island at heart will endeavor to hear Mr. Harrison if and when the opportunity again presents itself.

JAMES D. O'TOOLE.
Vice-chairman, Oak Bay Conservative Association, Deputy District Warden, Ten Mile Point.

NEW TREATMENT FOR RESPIRATORY DISEASES

To the Editor: — The enclosed editorial from the Huntsville Forester will be of interest to the many sufferers of asthma and bronchitis in this district. Now the Jubilee Hospital is being enlarged, could this new treatment not be investigated by the authorities, or service clubs, with the hope of bringing it to Victoria?

From Huntsville Forester:

"Many have watched with anxious interest the progress being made with the new Duke-Fingard treatment for bronchial asthma and other respiratory diseases. Hospitals have been established in Toronto, Ottawa, and Winnipeg, and there was a suggestion that a small hospital should be placed somewhere in Muskoka District.

"The Orillia Packet-Times referred to the invention of Mr. Fingard, and cites cases in Orillia where unquestioned benefits have been derived by Orillians who were chronic sufferers from bronchial troubles. One man who had been a victim of bronchial asthma for so many years that its chronic state endangered his life, tells of the effects obtained from the new treatment. He installed one of the Fingard machines, and says: 'I have not, since taking this treatment, been subjected to a serious attack, and am able to go about and enjoy life'.

"Another Orillia patient suffering from bronchitis and asthma, and who was able to work for only four to six months in each year, declares that after four months' treatment, 'I am absolutely free from bronchitis and asthma, and can go out into the frosty weather without any discomfort whatever, a thing I have not been able to do for many years'.

"Another case was that of a Mr. Thompson, who had suffered for many years from sinusitis, and despite every form of treatment, he was growing steadily worse. He installed a Fingard machine. After eight weeks' treatment, he says: 'I never felt better in my life, and I wouldn't go back to the condition I was in six months ago for $1,000,000'.

"It is admitted that medical science has, thus far, evolved no effective treatment for these distressing disorders. It is therefore in the hope that public interest may be aroused in providing, in some way, this new treatment for people now unable to secure it, that we call public attention to the Fingard method. The Packet-Times suggests that the treatment should be made available in all hospitals, now established, instead of attempting the establishment of new institutions. Through such a course, the treatment would be made sooner available to those who need it, and provision could thus be made for the care of those who need the treatment, but who are unable to bear heavy expense in securing it."

PERFECT MALE CONTEST OPEN

British Columbia's perfect male contest, one feature of the May 24 festivities planned at the Willows, was thrown open to remove the restrictions which would have limited the competition to members of the services.

The committee also decided today to have the A.R.P. display, during which planes will fly over the enclosure "bombing" certain objectives, start sharp at 1.30.

Certain detail work in connection with the sports events listed for the afternoon was completed, final arrangements being made for the five mile road race for the services. The distance run will start with a lap around the track and windup with the runners reappearing in the oval after running the required distance along Cadboro Bay Road.

Belgium Ready, Says Consul in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. Van Rickstal, Belgian consul at Vancouver, said early today he was "absolutely astounded" at the German invasion of Belgium and the neighboring low country.

"Belgium is ready," Mr. Van Rickstal said. "You can be assured the Germans will get a very hot reception.

"I am convinced the Belgians will be able to hold the Germans back until the Allies get there to help them."

Alberta Oil Report Expected Next Week

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government may release next week the report of the McGillivray royal commission which investigated conditions in the Alberta oil industry, it was reported today.

The report, a lengthy document of more than 500 pages, is being considered in detail by the cabinet.

In view of the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada upholding the British Columbia Act which provides for price fixing of fuel oils in that province, there is special interest here in the possibility of recommendations in the McGillivray report concerning gasoline and oil prices in Alberta.

Oak Bay Seeks Loan From Bank

A recommendation from R. F. Blandy, municipal clerk, that Oak Bay municipality seek a special bank loan to meet maturing bond payments, was given the approval of the council at last night's meeting.

Debentures issued under bylaw 86 to the amount of $56,500 would mature on December 31, 1940, Mr. Blandy reported. "At that time we do not expect to have this amount of cash in the relevant sinking fund unless we sell some of the bonds in our portfolio before maturity. It would not pay us, however, to sell such bonds if we can borrow money temporarily from the bank, at, say 4½ per cent, to tide us over," Mr. Blandy said. "We have ample cash in sight during the year 1941 to protect a loan against the by-law 86 maturity," he added.

The council authorized application be made to the Bank of Montreal immediately so that no difficulty would arise at the end of the year. Mr. Blandy said it was just possible the bank solicitors would object to the proposed arrangement in which case Oak Bay would have to apply to the Legislature for an amendment to the Municipal Act during the forthcoming session. Section 204 (2) of the Municipal Act gives the municipality power to hypothecate securities and borrow against them.

The councillors approved the suggestion of the police commission that an anti-noise by-law be passed in Oak Bay. This is to stop excessive noises in public places. Noise created by young people attending a dance in an Oak Bay hall several months ago, which drew complaints from residents, prompted the advocation of the anti-noise by-law.

The names of 75 residents were contained on a petition protesting against the new location of the municipality's rock crusher on the unused end of Epworth Street. It was formerly located in the vicinity of the Chinese cemetery. It was decided to forward a circular letter, from the engineer, to each of those who signed the petition, which may allay a lot of bad feeling due to misunderstanding of the situation. The crusher is just across the street from the old arena site, owned by Lester Patrick who said the crusher in that district would carry value of property to a new low.

A "Good Neighbor" is Dr. N. W. Jones, Portland, Oregon, in the opinion of the councillors. He is a property owner in Oak Bay and in paying his taxes with a United States cheque refused to accept the premium he was entitled to. Here is what he said in his letter: "I notice on my tax receipt . . . a premium credit of $2.58 to be applied on my 1941 taxes. Kindly remove this credit. I feel very strongly about the relationships between Canada and the United States and I do not think we should take advantage of the forced depreciation of your currency."

Although a petition was short one signature to warrant the paving of Guernsey Street, 15 feet wide, the council decided that as it was doing other local improvement work in the vicinity it would undertake this one-block job on the initiation basis, which is that they will petition all the home owners on this street and unless 50 per cent are against it, the job will be done. Fifty per cent opposition was not considered likely, however, as nine out of 14 signed for it. There is a regular local war over the matter, all home owners on the north side being opposed to paving and those on the south side favoring it. A petition signed by eight residents of Hamiota Street against the paving of that street did not contain sufficient names to stop the proposed work, Mr. Blandy reported. Only eight out of 21 oppose the plan, on the ground property assessment was high enough. Eleven signatures are necessary to stop it.

The council voted unanimously to "wipe our hands" of the matter of drafting a satisfactory taxicab fares by-law that would coincide with Victoria's by-law. It was felt the matter could be more ably handled by the Public Utilities Commission, which has powers to prescribe rates.

Although many resident of Carrick Street disapproved the changing of the street's name to Bangor, the council was informed the City of Victoria had decided to take no further steps on the matter. The councillors, however, in view of the protests it had received, will leave the name of the street at Carrick.

May 10, 1915

Serious damage was done to many German-operated premises in the city on Saturday and Sunday nights by a mob of citizens, including many soldiers and sailors. The rioting became so serious that Mayor Stewart was compelled to read the Riot Act before the crowd. The most serious damage was done on Saturday night when the crowd at one time reached about 3,000. The Blanshard Hotel, also known as the Kaiserhof, was completely wrecked, the street being strewn with furniture, bedding and broken glass.

Much looting was done, and in some cases premises were completely ransacked of their goods. The police were helpless and the militia were finally called out to quell the mob. The rioting commenced at about 8 and continued on until early morning.

Other places damaged besides the hotel were the Victoria Phoenix Brewery; Herman and Stringer, dry cleaners; Schaper and Glass, tailors; late premises of Deutscher Verein; Simon Leiser, warehouse; Lenz and Leiser, wholesale grocery; and Carl Loewenburg, tobacco store. The New England Hotel and the plumbing store of E. F. Geiger, Canadian-owned premises, were also damaged by the mob, who apparently thought they were German establishments.

Anti-Semitism Is Smoke Screen

"Termites of intolerance eating at the foundations of civilization" were the words used by Rabbi Samuel Cass in describing the persecution of the Jews and Christians by totalitarianism at a lecture to Victoria Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Rabbi Cass, speaking to the Rotarians on "Facts and Fables of the Jew," presented a general outline of the ancient history of the Jew from the time of Moses down to the present day Einstein, and described the Jewish people as the "bearers of a great heritage."

"Persecution of the Jews by totalitarians is the first step in the ultimate destruction of all those who seek truth. This persecution in Germany has brutalized men and women to such an extent that they no longer revere human beings," said the speaker.

Naziism and Facism has built up ruthless and power-mad men, and is a smokescreen to hide their real intentions. The tyrant always finds a pretext for his tyranny.

"The character of the Jews is clearly seen in the Bible. We have exposed ourselves in this book which is our autobiography. In the Bible one can see that we are not perfect, nor do we profess to be perfect. The Bible is never wrong. Even in the prayers conducted at the synagogues, we pray that all men should live together as brothers. No cry of mercy or vengeance even under the fanaticism of totalitarianism, is heard."

The speaker was introduced by M. L. Greene and thanked on behalf of the Rotarians by A. P. Dawe.

Walter Luuney, president, was chairman.

Canada's Folk Lore Among Finest In World

Says Mlle Gaultier In Delightful Recital-Lecture

A refreshing departure from the customary program of speeches was enjoyed by a large gathering of members of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel, when Mlle. Juliette Gaultier, French-Canadian artist, presented a fascinating lecture-recital of old Canadian folk-songs in costume.

Wearing an authentic Acadian wedding costume, with lovely old shawl, 150 years old, and a beautiful white lace coif or cap of the same age, and a homespun skirt of linen and wool and possessing a beautifully trained, warm and flexible mezzo-soprano voice, Mlle. Gaultier delighted the gathering with her artistic interpretation of a number of "miracle songs" of Acadia, French-Canadian and work songs and lullabies and other melodies of Indian and Eskimo origin, dating back perhaps 10,000 years. The singer accompanied herself in the French-Canadian and Acadian numbers on the viola d'amore, a little table harp of sweet tone, the Eskimo and Indian numbers being unaccompanied.

SPEAK PUREST FRENCH

Few countries have more or finer folk-songs than Canada, Mlle. Gaultier said in preface to her recital, as she recalled that, through the interest of the government, 10,000 of these old melodies have been recorded and filed. Some of the Acadian songs of French-Canada could be traced in Brittany today, among the descendants of the Acadians who returned to France, and the speaker recalled hearing from the lips of a centenarian in Brittany one of Canada's oldest slumber songs, which dated back to the early days of Grand Pre.

French-Canada speaks the pure French of 17th century France, the speaker noted in correcting the illusion, held by many, that the French-Canadian speaks a patois. French-Canada, she declared, had cherished the old traditions of France, her art, handicrafts, folk-songs and folklore in authentic form, in striking contrast to France itself, where much of the old had been modernized to its detriment.

ESKIMO MUSIC

Among the Indian folk-songs sung by Mlle. Gaultier was an early religious song of French-Canada which had been translated into Huron Indian language, in which she sang it. Declaring that the music of the Eskimos of Coronation Gulf in the Arctic was "the purest native music we have in Canada, because it has been free from the influence of the white man's music," she sang "Falling Tears," a song sung by Eskimo mothers to their children, also an incantation used by the medicine man or woman in healing the sick, and "Little Sparrows," a song sung by the Eskimo children in northern Alaska as they are making their snares to catch sparrows. All these were sung in the guttural Eskimo language, and attention was called to the half and quarter tones of the traditional music.

An interesting group of Indian songs, sung in the native tongue, included an echo song of the Assiniboine Indians, and a "privilege song," which is sung only to the sons of Nootka chiefs.

OLD HANDICRAFTS

Mlle. Gaultier supplemented her delightful recital with a word or two of pleading for the salvaging of Canada's handicrafts, which ranked among the finest in the world. She exhibited a number of lovely examples of handweaving and dyeing from old Quebec, suggesting that a revival of such cottage industries throughout Canada would not only offset the unemployment problem, but would preserve an art which brings not only material but spiritual satisfaction to the creator. She also deplored the passing of Indian art and craft and the tendency to modernize it in the interests of commercialism, thus tending to lose its characteristic individuality.

LITHUNIAN COMING

Mrs. D. H. Hartness moved the vote of thanks to the speaker. Mrs. James Adam, who presided, announced that at the next meeting on Wednesday, May 22, Dr. Pakstas, distinguished Lithunian professor, would be the speaker on "The Problem of Territorial Justice for Future Peace Conference."

The annual meeting would be on Tuesday, June 4. Nominations must be in the hands of the committee by May 22, the committee appointed yesterday consisting of Mrs. S. J. Willis, Mrs. W. H. Yardley and Mrs. E. W. Hetherington.

Closing Banquet of Senior 'Y' Girls

MISS KITTY CAMERON

MISS DORIS JONES

MISS DOROTHY BEECH

DR. OLGA JARDINE

MRS. B. S. HEISTERMAN

Marking the transition from the winter to the summer program of activities, senior club girls of the Y.W.C.A. held a most successful banquet last evening, attended by nearly 150 girls and guests. Miss Kitty Cameron, president of the senior girls' council, presided and welcomed the guests, who included: Dr. Olga Jardine, Mrs. B. S. Heisterman, Capt. and Mrs. Beaumont, Miss Fawcett, Miss Russell, Mr Sanders, Miss J. Whitehead, Mr. Jim McCague, Mrs. John Baxter, Mrs. L. A. Gane, Mrs. H. P. Hodges and Miss Bullock-Webster.

A happy feature of the gathering was the presentation to Miss Doris Jones, retiring general secretary, by Miss Cameron, on behalf of the senior club girls, of an attractive myrtlewood lamp and candlesticks as a wedding gift.

"OTHER LITTLE SHIPS"

Miss Jones, whose speech was in the nature of a valedictory, as she is leaving next week for Toronto to be married, took as her theme "Other Little Ships." She warned the girls of the tendency, in facing their own problems, to forget the "other little ships," and reminded them of our dependence on each other in this rapidly shrinking world." The fellowship of the "Y" know no national jealousies nor international hatreds, she said, pointing to the "Y" triangle as a symbol of unity of body, mind and spirit, interpreted into purpose, plan and power.

Miss Dorothy Beech, girls' work secretary, gave an interesting review of the senior girls' activities during the last year and a forecast of the coming program. It was gratifying, she said, that the membership had tripled during the past year. She thanked all club leaders for their interest, and also thanked the press for its continued co-operation.

Dr. Olga Jardine brought greetings from the board of directors. Miss Faith Sinclair, president of the Hi-Y, interclub council, conveyed greetings from that body. It was announced by Miss Suzanne Butler that Miss Charlotte Crawford and Miss Mary Pinches will be the delegates to the Hamilton conference.

Some novel effects were achieved in decoration of the various tables, illustrating the theme "On to Hamilton," where the national conference will be held. Later in the evening Mrs. John Baxter announced that the prize for the best table decoration had been awarded to the Versatile Club, and presented them with the silver cup. The judges complimented the other groups on their artistic and original results. The Live Y-ers won the attendance prize.

The delightful program of entertainment included a lively sing-song led by Miss Charlotte Crawford and two solos, "All in a Merry Maytime" and "The Star," were charmingly sung by Miss Ruth Bawtenheimer, whose accompaniments were played by Mrs. W. B. Milburn.

Much amusement was caused by the clever skit "In the Land of Oz," presented by the Y.T.A. Club under the direction of Miss Faith Sinclair, the Tin Man, the Lion and the Scarecrow arousing much laughter by their antics and parodies.

Hall presented a fairy-like appearance, with standard baskets of flowers, and hung with streamers, balloons and Chinese lanterns all in pastel shades. Miss Eleanor Moffatt, popular bride-to-be, was presented with a beautiful silver flower basket from members of the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last evening, when Mrs. F. W. Hawes, the president, entertained the choir last evening at her home, 868 Falkland Road, following the usual practice. The presentation was made by Mrs. Hawes, on behalf of the members, who also expressed their good wishes. Table tennis and other games were played, and numerous prizes were awarded. A color scheme of purple and gold was used for the supper table, with purple irises in a cut glass bowl, lighted by golden tapers in silver holders, forming the attractive centrepiece. Mrs. J. Ratcliffe and Mrs. F. J. Mitchell presided. Between 30 and 40 guests were present.

In compliment to Miss Muriel Harrison, whose marriage will take place this month, Mrs. W. Spedding, Belton Avenue, entertained at her home on Wednesday evening. The bride-to-be was given a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and forget-me-nots by little David Spedding. Vases of narcissi, iris and tulips were arranged in decoration of the reception room. Bridge and Pan-American chess were played during the evening and the prizes were won by Mrs. J. Gill, Mrs. E. Cliff and Miss Muriel Gill. Following refreshments, which were served from a table centred with columbine and forget-me-nots in a cut glass bowl, flanked by tall yellow tapers in silver holders, the guest of honor was presented with a set of three rose boudoir lamps, the gift of her assembled friends. The guests were: Mesdames H. Harrison, E. Cliff, M. Shepherd, W. McHugh, J. Gill, G. Grant, R. Noble, H. Nancarrow, F. Hooper, Misses Muriel and Gloria Gill, Marion Alexander and Evelyne Fleming.

Would Restrict Sale Of Liquor During War

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Frederick G. Millar of Hamilton, president of the Provincial Council of Women, told delegates in semi-annual convention today that while "the war has jolted the selfishness out of the most thoughtless, most of our efforts are not looking to the future to make Canada a saner, safer land at its close."

She recalled that several months ago the council asked the Dominion government to restrict the sale of liquor as a war measure, but no action had been taken.

"There would be only negligible problems and vastly less poverty if Canadians stopped making fools of themselves with alcoholic drinks."

Weddings

BROWN—THORPE

At the United Church, Duncan, at 1 p.m., Rev. W. F. Burns united in marriage Bernice Edith, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Thorpe, Duncan, and Herman Justin Brown, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Brown, Duncan. The Church was beautifully decorated by girl friends of the bride with tulips, iris and dogwood, and the guest pews marked with white tulle and forget-me-nots. Messrs. Leonard Thorpe and Wilfred Brown acted as ushers. The service was choral, with Bernard Ryall at the organ, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Douglas Tait sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length model of tidal blue velsheer over quilted taffeta, with wide rose point lace insertion and panels, and a full train. The full sleeves were banded at the wrist. Her veil was of blue illusion net, worn with a coronet of orange blossoms and forget-me-nots. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, lily of the valley and bridal roses.

Miss Cora Wharton of Victoria was bridesmaid, wearing a floor-length gown of dove rose velsheer over taffeta in the same shade. The sweetheart neckline outlined in heavenly blue velvet, the full skirt trimmed with appliqued bows of blue velvet. Lace mitts and a large picture hat trimmed with blue velvet completed the charming ensemble. Her bouquet was colonial type in pastel shades. Mr. Gerald Brown, the groom's brother, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the guests were received by Mrs. O. C. Brown in a dress of aquamarine silk serge, black sheer coat, black hat and accessories, and corsage of rosebuds and bouvardia, and Mrs. R. A. Thorpe in black silk alpaca, with blush rose trimming, rose hat and corsage of roses and lily of the valley. The house was decorated with pink, blue and white flowers, the three-tier wedding cake adorning the table, surounded by silver vases of pink carnations, forget-me-nots and lily of the valley. Rev. W. F. Burns proposed the toast to the bride.

The young couple left for a motor tour of Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, the bride traveling in a tailored suit of navy blue, blue topcoat and navy and white accessories, with corsage of orchids. On their return they will make their home in Duncan.

British-French Plan Cultural Unity

By GLADYS M. ARNOLD
Canadian Press Correspondent

PARIS (CP) — Great Britain and France must not only teach history, they must make it, said Lord de la Warr, then President of the British Board of Education, here to help chart the course of the two nations for continued intellectual and cultural co-operation now and after the war.

De la Warr has since been appointed First Commissioner of Works; Herwald Ramsbotham is carrying on as President of the Board of Education.

VISITED SCHOOLS

"We intend to carry on into the peace," said the British education head. "So we've had to see that the foundations laid down are not sudden and dramatic but solid and enduring." Lord de la Warr had several conferences with Albert Sarraut, the French Minister of Education; George Huisman, Director-general of Beaux-Arts and other authorities.

In addition to his consultations with the French ministry of education, Lord de la Warr visited French public and high schools, colleges, and was received at the University of Paris (the Sorbonne) by the rector, M. Roussy, members of the council and the doyens. Plans for the future co-operation of the youth of the two countries were outlined.

"How can the schools aid in consolidating the educational front?" said Lord de la Warr. "Many schools in England already have adopted plans and organized special means for making known to pupils the culture, language and history of France. We plan the exchange of teachers and pupils on a large scale.

FRENCH VIEW

Mr. Sarraut was no less emphatic. "We propose to spread first, as far as possible, the knowledge, study and use of the English language in France—French in England. To speak another language is not enough; our basis is to teach 'England' to our children — to teach 'France' to English children. We are going to utilize the most varied methods—direct exchange of children's colonies, professors and students. Especially attention will be paid to the primary schools and many of our young teachers, normal graduates, will be sent to England. Programs will be especially arranged for adult education classes and for workers."

Commentators in France see in this latest evidence of the Franco-British will to unity, a development of far-reaching consequences—a turning-point in the story of human relations.

St. Mary's Senior W.A. met in the parish hall yesterday afternoon, Mrs. A. A. Bengough presiding. After the transaction of the regular business, Miss Henley gave an interesting study on "The Resources of the Younger Churches of the Orient," and Mrs. Harris told of her recent visit to the branches at Courtenay, Cumberland, Gomox and Nanaimo. Mrs. Edwards, hospital convener, announced a shower would be held in the parish hall on Wednesday afternoon, when gifts for the Alert Bay, Lytton and Pender Island Hospitals would be received. Miss Roberts, girls' secretary, asked co-operation for a rummage sale the girls' branch are having in June. Tea was served following the meeting.

SCIENTIFICALLY TESTED TO ENSURE QUALITY

In the huge Tip Top Tailors plant a testing laboratory guards the quality of every inch of Tip Top's woolens. In this laboratory, staffed by experienced textile technicians, every material receives exhaustive tests and inspections before it is declared "good enough" for Tip Top Tailors. All fabrics are pre-shrunk by the world's most modern shrinking process. They receive a light test to determine their resistance to fading. Strict tests for tensile strength are made, which tell whether a fabric can "take it." And many additional tests put these British woolens through their paces.

When inspecting the many new patterns now showing at your Tip Top store, you can be sure, whatever your choice is, that it has passed every high Tip Top test with banners flying. Remember—our inspection is your protection.

House Endorses Gas Sales Bill 4 Liberals in Opposition Vote

Despite a vigorous protest from Conservatives against interference in business and a revolt of four Liberal members, the B.C. government's bill giving permissive power to go into the gasoline business was endorsed late last night by the Legislature.

In a 32 to 10 vote, C.C.F. group supported the government on second reading of the measure. The Liberal recalcitrants who voted with the Conservatives were H. G. Perry, Fort George; Dr. J. J. Gillis, Yale; Louis LeBourdais, Cariboo; and E. C. Henniger, Grand Forks-Greenwood.

In a hectic six-hour debate, the government was accused on the one hand by R. L. Maitland, K.C., Conservative leader, of using business control legislation for political power, on the other by the C.C.F., that it was not going far enough; and finally was informed by Mr. Perry that its program was the antithesis of historic Liberal doctrine. Mr. Perry demanded a party convention to let the public know exactly where the Liberals stand on socialistic policies.

This uprising brought from Attorney-General Wismer, when he pushed ahead with the government's second bill which would force the distribution of gasoline if the oil companies refused, a flat denial of the allegations of socialistic intentions.

"This government doesn't want to go into business," the Attorney-General said. "That is not our policy, but we must have these measures to make effective the legislation controlling gasoline prices that we passed two years ago. Anyone who votes against them might just as well advocate repeal of the original price-fixing law and I'll defy anyone in the opposition to flaunt public opinion and do that."

Before the vote on second reading was taken, the government had defeated a Conservative move for a six months' hoist in the measure by a split of 33 to 9. This came on a motion of Dr. J. D. Hunter, Victoria, and would have effectively killed the measure if it had passed. Three Liberals joined the Conservatives in the attempt.

Pattullo

Early in the second reading debate, Premier Pattullo made it clear the government has no immediate intention of going into the gasoline business so long as private distribution is carried on.

But, he added that if the government strikes oil in the Peace River it will automatically be in the gasoline business, although as yet no definite plans have been made for handling such a supply.

Exigencies of the situation required, he said, that the government have the authority in case the public's supply of gasoline were again threatened.

Answering Mr. Maitland's public statement criticizing government interference in business the Premier declared:

"I do not believe in control of business as a general rule. I am an individualist so long as the activity of individiduals does not trespass on the interests of the public. When it does I favor control—in other words control in the public interest."

He said the government had no desire to do any injury to business inerests.

But, he said, the oil companies had wanted to be outside the Supreme Court's decision on validity of the price control law and the government could not stand for that for a moment. Now that gasoline deliveries were resumed the government sought gas sale authority as an additional safeguard.

Maitland

Mr. Maitland opened his attack on the bill as an abrogation of the Bill of Rights. It gave the government power to spend unlimited sums going into the business without reference to the House, and was in effect taxation without representation.

The Conservative leader said he was concerned mostly with the trend in legislation which put additional powers over different business groups into the hands of the governing part:.

"It means greater autocracy, greater dictatorships," he said. "These kind of laws put such powerful weapons into the governing party's control that they never can be put out. I can tell you now that B.C. towns feel the weight of this political machine more than any others in Canada."

"Our legislation has become so bad in this respect that many people are afraid to express opinions for fear the government will take steps affecting their livelihood."

B.C. needed industrial expansion to provide jobs, he said, but regulatory legislation would drive away the money that was required because business had to base its policy on a long-range view and must know in advance what sort of treatment it could expect from the government.

"This mad dive for power by the government must be stopped," he said. "The trend toward bureaucracy is undermining the confidence of the people."

Mr. Maitland said there was a big difference between curbing abuses in business and giving the party in power a big stick.

He said the Combines Investigation Act provided all the necessary authority for dealing with the situation in the gasoline industry, and the government should have invoked it long ago if it was satisfied abuses existed.

"Can you give me evidence that will convict under any legislation now in existence in Canada?" asked Attorney-General Wismer.

"How have convictions been secured in all the combine trials that have been held?" retorted Mr Maitland.

"Is my friend suggesting a criminal charge be laid against the oil companies? I have not done that," said the Attorney-General.

"Well, what was your application to Ottawa for a combine investigation—just bluff? That would lead to criminal charges, wouldn't it?" said Mr. Maitland.

"It might if the investigation first showed them warranted," replied Mr. Wismer.

Premier Pattullo said the Opposition Leader should not impute motives to the government.

Mr. Maitland insisted the government should have invoked the Combines Act long ago. The Macdonald report said the price of gasoline was too high, held up by a monopoly scheme, and the government's duty was clear.

The reason seemed to be that by allowing the situation to develop so it could bring in the present bill the Liberal Party could get more political control, and it was probably looking for an increased gas tax.

Mr. Maitland detailed various recent acts of the Legislature which, he said, gave the governing party this type of power and insisted the time had come for protection of the public.

"How far is this thirst for power going to go?" he asked. "Next thing we know we'll have the C.C.F. system, where the executive decides everything."

Wismer

Attorney-General Wismer replied to Mr. Wismer, flatly denying that the gas sale bill meant any interference in business.

"There is no power in it to encroach on anyone's business in this bill," he said. "It simply allows the government to go into the oil business in competition with the existing companies. Any money spent under it would naturally have to be voted in estimates so the House retains control."

Mr. Wismer said that when the Macdonald report was brought down there was a unanimous demand for government action. The Conservative leader now suggested that the government should have adopted the ineffectual course of a combines investigation; which, at most, could only lead to criminal charges and not remedy the situation.

Mr. Maitland was changing his tune, he said, for back in 1936 he had urged the government to set up a public utilities commission to deal with gasoline.

"Yes, but not the kind of a bill you brought in," retorted Mr. Maitland.

The Attorney-General said the coal and petroleum board had consistently showed its intention to treat fairly with the industry and consider all arguments; but before the gas strike the companies would not go to the board. They shut off the supply and the government had no way of knowing when it would be resumed.

"We did the only thing we could do," he said. "We called the house to submit legislation that would make it impossible for this to happen again. Until we pass a measure such as this the government could not get five cents worth of gasoline to distribute to the people."

Mr. Wismer said he was not criticizing the ethics of the oil business. He realized they were fighting to protect their interests; but the government had had only two alternatives: either to beg for gas at any price or to stand firm.

"The Premier will go down in our history as one of the most courageous men we have known because he stood firm," said the Attorney-General.

He continued that the government had several years ago passed legislation which outlawed strikes by labor men until they had gone through processes of conciliation and arbitration.

"Are we going to have one law for labor and another for corporations? I say not," he said.

Mr. Maitland insisted the companies had broken no provincial law, and Mr. Wismer agreed, although he said it was alleged they had acted contrary to the Combines Act. The government, said the Attorney-General, was not anxious to put anyone in jail, and was chiefly concerned with getting a supply of gasoline for the public.

"We have no intention of going into business in competition with the oil companies unless they refuse to supply the people with what is a vital commodity," he declared.

Questioned by E. V. Finland, Conservative, Esquimalt, as to where the government would get gasoline if it went into the business, Mr. Wismer said he did not think the oil companies doing business in B.C. had a monopoly on the world's supply. He was sure gasoline could be purchased for cash in some markets.

H. Winch

Harold Winch, C.C.F. leader declared his party in favor of immediate socialization of the gasoline business.

He said the companies argued that under the reduced prices they would not get a fair return, but that was on their present financial structure. The Macdonald report showed their structure was top-heavy and this was where the remedy was needed. Imperial Oil, he said, was making 40.7 per cent on its actual investment, although its statements showed only 5 per cent on market valuation of its stock.

The oil companies claimed to have steadily reduced gasoline prices, he said. Actually they had passed on to the public only a portion of the savings they had made through improved production methods. He claimed the companies, owning the tankers, collected what revenue they liked for carrying crude oil and charged it on to the ultimate gas prices.

Even at the present prices the people were still being overcharged and "legally robbed," he said.

During the gas strike, he declared, a Cranbrook firm imported gas from Alberta, took a six-cent retailer's spread and was still able to sell at 30 cents, which was two cents below the board's fixed price.

"That's one of the reasons we think gasoline should be brought under complete government control and ownership," he said.

He cited the Macdonald report that the retail distribution system was much too cumbersome, with too many stations, and declared the company's station leases were the "most vicious and damnable documents I've ever seen." They put the dealers completely in the power of the companies, he said.

Mr. Winch called the government's bill an "intimidation measure," and urged that it be made mandatory instead of permissive.

"A lot of people are saying it is just a weapon for the Liberal party to get campaign funds from the oil companies," he said "I'm not imputing that motive but people are saying it."

Mr. Winch figured a fair price on which to take over the gasoline business would be about $6,000,000. Total investment, he said, was $14,500,000 but the companies had a depreciation reserve of $6,000,000 against this. In addition it was estimated the companies had overcharged the public $2,300,000 since the first gas order was made, all of which should be deducted from the purchase price.

The government's plan to compete with the oil companies was futile, he said, because it simply meant adding one more gas company to the present uneconomic situation. He said the government should take complete control and could get gas from Mexico if it wanted.

Perry

H. G. Perry, Liberal, Fort George, came out with a slashing attack on the bill just before supper time.

"I don't like this legislation, gentlemen," he said. "I've been a Liberal all my life and this is against everything I've stood for."

"In the federal election I helped to defeat a C.C.F. candidate in our district by proving to the people Socialism would not work. Now I've got to go back, if I vote for this bill, and prove to them that it can work under Mr. Pattullo.

"If I support this bill, as a man of honor I'll have to go across the House and take a seat with the C.C.F., for at least they are sincere in their socialistic plans."

Mr. Perry said the government should start its socialistic program on things like sugar, butter, milk, meat and other things that were even more vital than gasoline.

"We're going to have Fascism in B.C. the first thing you know," he said. "I note the C.C.F. are talking as if they will probably support the bill, but they are making a mistake, just as the radicals in Russia did at first."

He said if the government was going into business it should start on profitable businesses rather than go into a gasoline industry at a time when the private companies found it unprofitable.

"This is the kind of Socialism the capitalists like—where the government steps in and picks up things that are not profitable, like the P.G.E. and the C.N.R. The people are left holding the sack," he said.

Mr. Perry finished by saying that if the new Liberalism of B.C. was to be found in such a program it was high time a convention was called so the party could restate its policy to the public.

"I am saying these things more in anguish and sorrow than in temper or passion," he concluded.

Hunter

Dr. J. D. Hunter, Victoria Conservative, declared the issue at stake went further than the simple solution of the gasoline problem. It was the great question whether the government was to keep unsettling business with more and more interference.

"This government," he said, is leaning more and more to the left, year by year, destroying the principles, upsetting the tenets of democracy, freedom and liberty—attempting, perhaps unwittingly, to upset the very ideals which the British Empire is fighting in Europe to maintain.

"Must this government when it is being closely shown the evils of dictatorship, the evils of Hitlerism and the disaster of undemocratic methods in other parts of the world, try to abrogate to itself these autocratic powers."

The Premier objected to the imputation the government was using Hitlerian methods, and told the member to curb his language.

The first vote was then taken on Dr. Hunter's move for a six months' hoist.

There was a brief exchange of argument after the motion was defeated when the Premier said the vote technically closed the debate, but he raised no objection to Mayor Telford going ahead.

Telford

The Vancouver mayor urged social ownership of the gasoline business, but would not trust the present government to handle it.

He also demanded the right for Vancouver under its charter to go into the business in case of another strike.

Mayor Telford went exhaustively into figures on the financial set up of the oil companies and their costs of production. He said they had fought very hard to maintain what they said was an unprofitable business.

He said the government's whole program on gasoline was a "heads the government wins, tails the people lost proposition." When it got the power to fix prices it hoped to raise the gas tax and have a road potlatch.

He objected to Vancouver being made the main battle ground in the oil dispute and complained that the city had not been called into consultation in dealing with the problem.

Politicians in charge of things had little business sense or they would have fought, struggled, co-operated or done anything to see that gas was available to the public.

The companies, he said, called the government's bluff and the government had no plan laid down to meet the contingency.

Mayor Telford said that so long as the competitive system was to remain it should not be cramped by regulation. But, in gasoline, a co-operative agency could be organized to act as a yardstick on prices.

Liberals Attack

Dr. J. J. Gillis, Yale, said he was surprised the government would sponsor such a bill. The Attorney-General's explanation was unsatisfactory, he said, really an apology. He said the less government intervention there was in business the better for all concerned and on this line he attacked marketing control as an illustration.

Louis LeBourdais, Cariboo, said he was sorry to oppose the government but the people of his riding felt that way, and he was carrying out their instructions. He said when the government went into the liquor business prices went up and the same might be expected in gasoline.

Ex-Kaiser at Doorn

BERLIN (AP)—Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm remained at his Dutch estate at Doorn today while the army he once commanded invaded the Netherlands which has given him refuge since Germany went down to defeat in the last war.

Allies' Day Comes, Declares Gamelin

PARIS (CP)—General Gamelin, the Allied commander-in-chief, today issued the following order of the day to his troops:

"The attack we foresaw last October was unleashed this morning. Germany has engaged in a death struggle against us. The watchwords are: For France and all her Allies: Courage, energy, confidence."

BRUSSELS (AP)—Belgium is "resolved to defend herself by all means; she has the right with her and can not be vanquished," Germany was told today in a note handed to German Ambassador von Bulow-Schwante by Paul Henri Spaak, the Belgian foreign minister.

The note said:

"Germany for the second time has invaded neutral and loyal Belgium. The present invasion is even worse than that of 1914.

"No ultimatum was given. No official notification. No protests.

"Instead, a direct attack violating the neutrality of the country.

"This attitude deprived Germany of any justification. This violation will hurt the conscience of the entire world abroad."

Bomb for Bomb If Civilians Raided

LONDON (AP)—Great Britain and France today warned Germany of possible "appropriate" action in event of bombings of civil populations by her.

The British government "publicly proclaimed that it reserved to itself the right to take any action which it might consider appropriate in event of bombings of civil populations" by Germany.

Britain's proclamation followed a reported bombing of Chilham in rural Kent, 40 miles southeast of London, and raids on various towns in the Netherlands and Belgium.

PARIS (AP) — The French government today announced its intention of replying with air bombardments on other than military objectives if the Germans bomb such targets.

The announcement said such bombardments would break the accord of September 1, 1939, sponsored by President Roosevelt.

Germans Threaten Dutch Citizens

THE HAGUE (AP)—German leaflets dropped in The Hague by plane told the residents today that strong German forces had surrounded the city and that "resistance is insanity."

(This dispatch was filed more than two hours after the Berlin radio had claimed the Germans had occupied The Hauge, and apparently proves that to be untrue.)

The leaflets said:

"Germany does not fight your country, but England. The German army, compelled to continue a struggle it has not wanted, had no other choice but to invade your country.

"The German army guarantees the life and property of every peaceful citizen, but every act of violence committed by the population will be followed by capital punishment.

"Every Dutch citizen should go about his business. Then he is serving the interest of his own nation."

Netherlands Relief

BUDAPEST (By Telephone to New York) (AP)—The German invasion of Belgium and the Netherlands today was taken in Balkan capitals as a reprieve for southeastern Europe.

The belief was expressed that Germany would be so occupied with extension of the western front that the southeast would be spared war, at least for the present.

The Germans closed the German-Hungarian and German-Jugoslav frontiers.

Allies Purchase 2,000 U.S. Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aviation authorities today said the British and French governments had ordered 2,000 or more additional American made warplanes in the last few days.

The new contracts for the latest type fighting planes and bombers developed for the United States army air corps, were said to have boosted the Allies purchases within the last month to 4,000 or more military aircraft.

At the same time, it was disclosed the war dapartment intends to recommend to President Roosevelt that Congress be asked for funds immediately to build 200 long-range, four-motor bombers to reinforce western hemisphere defence.

The additional bombers would be a part of the 6,000-plane quota which Congress authorized for the air corps last year. Fifty-two of the big bombers are in service and 200 others are on orders.

the latest Allied plane purchases coincided with authoritative reports that the Anglo-French purchasing mission contemplated relying more heavily on the United States for aerial reinforcements than originally planned, in view of the war's new turn.

The latest orders include an undisclosed number of Martin bombers and of a fast new pursuit plane developed for the air corps by the North American Aviation Corporation, Inglewood, Calif.

'Depths of Infamy'

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times said today the German invasion of the Low Countries "touches the very depths of infamy."

Swiftly making over its editorial pages when news of the latest Nazi blitzkrieg broke on a stunned world, The Times said scathingly in a late edition:

"This desperate action of the German government is bound to stir the feelings of the American people to their very depths. . . . Germany has thrown a challenge in the face of the whole Atlantic world."

SIGN OF YE 76

by JOHN CLINTON

I just saw a movie that you ought to see. The trouble is, I don't know how you're going to see it. Some of our engineers made it a while back, and it's a dilly.

* * *

It shows what happened to two motors which started out in life without any carbon in their cylinders. They were each driven 6000 miles over the same roads. At the end of that time, the engineers took the lids off the motors, and what do you think they found?

* * *

Nope, not Scarlett O'Hara. But in the motor that had been driven with one kind of oil there was a lot of carbon. Enough to make the motor ping on the least excuse.

* * *

However, in the other motor—the one that had been driven with Triton Motor Oil, on my word of honor, there wasn't enough to make the least practical difference. What little there was, was so soft you could scratch it with your finger nail.

* * *

Triton forms very little carbon itself. The movie showed that. And because it forms so little, it will allow your motor to burn up most of the old carbon formed by other oils and blow it out the exhaust pipe! In other words . . . Triton changes Ping to Purr!

* *

And just in case you're a skeptic and you don't believe me, or the movie I saw, you have your crankcase filled with Triton Motor Oil this very day. Then drive 2 to 3 thousand miles, and see for yourself. You'll never use anything else, I can promise you.

John N. Evans Of Duncan, 94

DUNCAN—John N. Evans celebrated his 94th birthday at home yesterday. Though confined to the house with a lame foot, he is otherwise in good health, retains a keen interest in affairs and has a remarkable memory for events of the old days. He wrote to the Sisters of St. Ann recently congratulating them on the 75th anniversary of their school at Tzouhalem and in return two of the Sisters and 14 boys visited him at his home on Sunday and presented items from their jubilee concert, which he had been unable to attend.

He was reeve of the municipality of North Cowichan for many years.

ST. MATTHIAS A.Y.P.A.

St. Matthias A.Y.P.A. held a business meeting on Wednesday evening to make final plans for the debate and rally to be held in the Parish Hall on Monday, May 13. The remainder of the evening was spent in decorating for the annual dance to be held this evening.

J. C. Bridgman Heads Realtors

J. C. Bridgman was re-elected president of the Real Estate Board of Victoria at the 19th annual meeting held in Spencer's dining-room.

H. D. Patterson was elected first vice-president and F. J. D. Pemberton second vice-president. The above three, along with E. F. Burton, S. G. Clark, M. K. Crockett, J. Forman, A. Gillespie and R. H. Shanks, will compose the executive committee of the board. The installation was handled by Major H. Cuthbert Holmes.

Hubert Lethaby was returned to serve his 17th year as secretary.

In his annual report Mr. Bridgman spoke of the manner in which the war had produced more government spending and greater prosperity in the country, and of the movement of retired people from the Old Country and the Orient to this city since the outbreak of war. He said the movement had promised to develop to considerable importance, but had been checked for the time being. Mr. Bridgman prophesied the move of families in this direction would be resumed after the war and would become a large factor in the development of the British Columbia coast and Victoria particularly.

"Residential building has been quite active during the past year. It is notable that, in spite of the large number of new houses, there are practically no vacancies," the president said. "This fact would make us believe that there was a big increase in population. But it will be remembered that 10 years ago vacancies increased, because in bad times people would economize by two families living in one home, and so forth. The reverse process is now taking place. Should hard times come there may be an apparent surplus of houses."

Mr. Lethaby's annual report showed the board to be in a healthy financial condition. During the year 18 luncheon meetings were held, on six occasions guest speakers being in attendance. The number of guest speakers was cut in half over the previous year, a greater amount of time being devoted to matters within the board.

The membership now stood at 52, he continued. This was slightly lower than in 1938-39, although the active membership was increased by two. Regret over the death of Arthur Lee was expressed by the secretary, who said he was a fine gentleman and greatly respected by members of the profession. Similar sentiments were expressed in the case of the late Lindley Crease, K.C. "They were two people who will be greatly missed in Greater Victoria."

Mr. Lethaby said he was sure that those members who attended meetings regularly received considerable benefit from the subjects discussed. He called for better attendances at meetings in the ensuing year. The secretary closed with an expression of thanks to the officers and members for their fine co-operation during the year.

'No Change in U.S. Stand'---Roosevelt

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Roosevelt sees no change with respect to the possibilities of the United States keeping out of Europe's war.

At a press conference today he said there was not much he could say about the situation abroad now and that it spoke for itself.

"I think I can say personally," he declared, authorizing direct quotation, "I am in full sympathy with the very excellent statement that was given out in the proclamation by the Queen of the Netherlands, and let it go at that. It is worth reading."

With reference to possible effects of Germany's invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg on the United States, the President asserted a great many things were being studied. He did not give details.

But in response to a question, he said that a German pledge, at the outbreak of the current war, not to bomb "open," unfortified towns, was being considered in the light of reports of the bombing of such cities.

A reporter asked him whether there was "anything you can say at this time as to what you think the chances are that we can keep out of the war."

That, he said, would be speculative. Then he hastened to add an admonition not to say that his words meant the United states might get in. He said he saw no change in the situation in that respect.

Tires with the most tread should be placed on the front wheels of an automobile, since in wet weather their squeegee action helps to dry off the road surface and affords better traction for the rear tires.

ST. JORRE WINS SPEAKING TROPHY

Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre retained possession of the handsome Rose Cup which he won last year for impromptu speaking at the Victoria High School. Speaking in competition with 12 other boy students St. Jorre drew a topic much to his liking and developed his subject well. James McAree, prominent school dramatic artist, was runner-up.

St. Jorre, speaking on "Winston Churchill" told of his parents and early childhood, during which time he attended a military school. He mentioned his prominence as a news reporter in the days of the Boer War and of his many positions in the British cabinet.

McAree speaking on "The Invention of the Airplane—Is It a Boon or Bane?" mentioned its use in mercy and distress work and its modern use as an instrument of war.

Other speakers and their topics were: John Foxgord, "Should a High School Student Leave School to Enter a Trade?" Ken Wills, "The British Navy — Its Record and Its Future"; Jim Kearney, "Will Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men Ever Come to the Earth?"; Jim McKeachie, "The United States and its Position in the Present Conflict"; Gerald Wyatt, "Should Visual Education be Developed in the Schools?"; Peter Wong, "Finland"; Basil Plimley, "Radio's Part in Modern History"; Pierre Destrube, "The Gasoline War"; Bob McLung, "Should a Man Be a Bachelor or Follow the Trend and Get Married?"; Charles Maunsell, "Recent Inventions"; Jim Pickford, "Should the Conscription of Men, Wealth and Natural Resorces Take Place in Time of War?"

Cup Matches Are Feature

LONDON (CP) — Concluding second-round games for the football league's war cup mark the opening of the Whitsuntide holiday's sports program in England. Thirty-two teams are battling in the two-game, home-and-home series.

English regional group matches will again be curtailed on account of cup play and much of interest has gone out of Scottish competitions with Rangers declared winners of the western division and Falkirk sure of the eastern championship.

Bristol Rovers, Everton and Barnsley enhanced their chances of qualifying for the third stage of the cup tournament by turning in convincing victories a week ago. The Rovers go to Swansea with a clear six-goal lead, and Everton is top-heavy favorite over Rochdale after wining the first game 5 to 1. Barnsley blanked Sheffield United 3 to 0, but will meet tough opposition at Sheffield.

Ten teams go into the deciding games with honors even. Coventry City's 2 to 0 victory over Wolverhampton Wanderers proved the big surprise of last Saturday's battles. The city is at home to the young Wolves tomorrow and is likely to emerge victorious on the round.

CUP DRAW

Cup games to be played tomorrow follow: Rochdale vs. Everton, Blackpool vs. Burnley, Manchester United vs. Blackburn Rovers, Barrow vs. Stoke City, Hull City vs. Huddesfield Town, Leeds United vs. Sunderland, Sheffield United vs. Barnsley; Newcastle United vs. Middlesbrough, West Ham United vs. Leicester City, Fulham vs. Norwich City, Southend United vs. Notts Forest, Crystal Palace vs. Arsenal, Coventry City vs. Wolverhampton Wanderers, Swansea Town vs. Bristol Rovers, West Bromwich Albion vs. Bournemouth and Reading vs. Birmingham.

SOCCER WORKOUT

Victoria City Football Club will hold a workout tomorrow afternoon at Heywood Avenue at 2.30. All players are requested to attend.

By PETE SALLAWAY

WHEN RED-HEADED Leland Stanford MacPhail, ex-soldier, ex-lawyer and ex-football official, obtained his first major league opportunity in Cincinnati, following a whirl in Columbus, he was looked upon as something of an easy mark by purveyors of baseball ivory. But Larry MacPhail learned, rapidly . . . surrounded himself with able people. When he left the Rhineland, the nucleus of its championship club was on the field.

And in two years, starting from scratch, MacPhail appears to have built another championship array in Brooklyn. MacPhail had to pay his way, too, for the club was $700,000 in debt. This he did with night baseball, which paid for itself and then some. MacPhail's first act upon taking over the outfit early in 1938 was to give the Phillies $45,000 and an athlete of no consequence for first baseman Dolf Camilli. This quickly convinced the good people of Flatbush he intended to make every effort to give them a winner.

MacPhail made so many deals some of them had to be bad—the purchase of Mel Almada from the St. Louis Browns for $25,000 and an outfielder, for example—but the majority of his transactions panned out very well. One in which not a few of the sharpshooters believed MacPhail was short-changed no little brought Leo Ernest Durocher from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for infielders Joe Stripp and Jimmy Bucher, outfielder Johnny Cooney and southpaw Roy Henshaw. But it turned out that MacPhail gave nothing in particular, and Durocher appeared in 141 games in '38 and was selected as the manager of the year after batting .277 in 116 games in '39.

At 35, Lippy Leo Durocher has no superior as a fielding shortstop. Yet he has been kept in the dugout this spring by the brilliance of Pee Wee Reese, whom the Boston Red Sox did not believe would hit well enough to fit into their plans. MacPhail turned to Milwaukee for two members of Brooklyn's pitching Big Three, Luke Hamlin and Whitlow Wyatt, and drafted the third, Hugh Casey, from Memphis. Tex Carleton, the no-hit, no-run hero, Tot Pressnell and Newell Kimball, also came from the Brewers. Fat Fred Fitzsimmons and Vitautas Tamulis were obtained on waivers—from the New York Giants and Browns, respectively.

The Red Birds seem to have let a fine young catcher go in Herman Franks, who caught Carleton's no-hitter and who has made bench warmers out of Phelps and Gus Mancuso. Pete Coscarart, only 24, and purchased from Nashville, is the key man in the slickest infield the National League has boasted in years . . . one backed up by such capable reservists as Durocher and Johnny Hudson.

MacPhail gave $25,000 each for two of his three former American League outfielders, Joe Vosmik and Roy Cullenbine. Dixie Walker came from Detroit at the waiver price. They have been keeping Charley Gilbert, up from Nashville, Jimmy Ripple and Ernie Koy in the dugout. Larry MacPhail always managed to dig someone up whenever Leo Durocher pressed the button. But their cyclonic finish of 1939 and early rush this trip is evidence that the Brooklyn Dodgers are finally set. They are now going about the business of forcing some of the other clubs to make some changes—that is if they care to remain contenders.

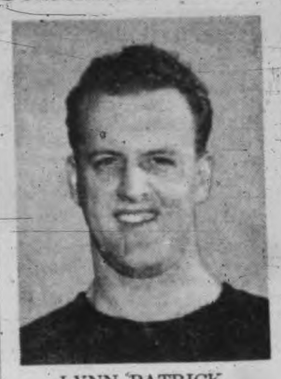
Stickmen Clash Tonight at Willows



LYNN PATRICK

DUSTY MAIR

JACK McSWEEN

A trio of stickhandlers who will be wearing the black of Coach Gus Munroe's Jokers team tonight when their club takes on Coach Ted Menzies' James Bay in the boxed-in arena at the Willows sports auditorium in a senior box lacrosse tilt. Bays, city champions last year, will be making their initial start in the 1940 campaign. The Jokers, with one battle and couple more practices under their belts, are expected to give the powerful Bays a better brand of competition than they did Alerts the other night. This clash will highlight a two-game card and will start at 8.30. A preliminary at 7 will see Owl Drug and Douglas Tire, minor league teams, playing.

Baseball

Rookies Are Stars

Bob Feller is just the kind of a feller who's liable to keep rapping at that no-hit door long enough for it to open again.

You could count on the fingers of one hand all the pitchers who ever accomplished two no-hitters in a lifetime, and the only one who ever got two in the same season was Johnny Vander Meer with his successive spectacles in 1938.

Yet Feller barely was sidetracked yesterday as he shutout New York Yankees for Cleveland Indians 4 to 0 on three hits. He didn't give up a safety until the seventh inning.

Tex Carleton, making his first start since hurling a no-hitter April 30, locked in a dramatic duel with Larry French that went to 10 innings before Brooklyn Dodgers broke through for a 4 to 1 victory over Chicago Cubs.

PIRATES BAD

The horrible bottom in pitching was reached at Pittsburgh as Pirates lost their ninth consecutive game by a 17 to 6 score to New York Giants. Frenzied Frankie Frisch used five slingers, who gave up 15 hits, 10 bases on balls and hit three batsmen. The rest of the Pirates did their duty by making seven errors.

A St. Louis rookie, Ernie White, came through with a good relief chore for Cardinals, pitching seven scoreless innings as the Red Birds overpowered the Phillies 8 to 4. Stu Martin notched his fourth home run in three days.

Another creditable relief job was that of Herb Hash, the youngster who now has won three games for Boston Red Sox. The Detroit Tigers came from behind to tie their game at five all in the seventh, and then Hash shut them out until the 10th, when Johnny Peacock singled with the bases loaded for a 6 to 5 verdict, the fourth straight in favor of the American League leaders.

Dutch Leonard triumphed over the hapless Chicago White Sox 8 to 4 with the help of some heavy hitting by his Washington teammates. The St. Louis Browns cracked down on Philadelphia Athletics 4 to 2.

COAST LEAGUE

The Los Angeles' Angels overcame a Rainier lead with a four-run drive in the eighth inning to defeat Seattle 7 to 5 in the south last night and even their Pacific Coast League series at one-all.

It was a parade of pitchers with Seattle using three and the Angels four. Paul Gregory, Seattle's starting pitcher, was hit on his throwing arm by a wild pitch by Lee Stine in the seventh and lost his control.

Bill Walker, who relieved him, was the Angels' target in the eighth.

The league-leading San Diego Padres continued their stranglehold on first by winning their third straight from Portland, 7 to 1.

Trailing by one run going into the ninth inning, Hollywood staged a two-run rally that produced a 5 to 4 victory over the Oakland Acorns.

An unearned run gave the San Francisco Seals a 5 to 1 victory over the Sacramento Solons in Sacramento.

Results, with scores in first column, hits in second and errors in third, follow:

Brooklyn	4	7	0
Chicago	1	4	0

Ambers Battles Jenkins Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since Lou Ambers won the world lightweight championship the first time in 1936, he has had the doubtful pleasure of tangling with punching specialists rather than less-dangerous skilled boxers every time the chips were down.

Now that he's getting along in years, so far as fistic experience is concerned, he's too old to change the habit at this stage of the game.

So he puts his crown on the line again tonight in Madison Square Garden against another knocker-outer—Texas Lew Jenkins; a swatter from Sweetwater, who had disposed of his last three opponents in a total of five rounds.

AMBERS FAVORITE

Promoter Mike Jacobs figures the chances of a "kayo," plus Ambers' only recently recognized ability as one of the classiest lightweights in years, should draw some 15,000 into the garden to take in the show in which the Herkimer, N.Y., hurricane defends his title for the first time since he regained it from Henry Armstrong last August.

Despite Jenkins' right hand cannon and a left hook that does funny things to the other guy's body, the betting fraternity has installed Herkimer Lou a 1-to-2 shot to keep right on being lightweight boss when the festivities end.

Jenkins has won 10 straight fights, the last seven by knockouts.

TAISTO MAKI HAS ENLARGED HEART

ST. PAUL (AP) — The dispatch said yesterday it had learned authoritatively that Taisto Maki, Finnish distance runner, had been advised to cut down his training because of an enlarged heart and that a race scheduled for the west coast May 17 probably would be his last before returning to Finland.

The dispatch said he was given the advice at the University of Minnesota, where last Saturday he ran third behind Greg Rice, former Notre Dame star, and Walter Mehl, Wisconsin runner, in a 3,000-metre race.

It was understood, the paper added, that there was nothing wrong with Maki that could not be corrected by a temporary lay-off from training.

Organize New V.I. Net Body

Formation of the Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands District Lawn Tennis Association was seen at a meeting of representatives from local and suburban clubs in the Colonist board room last evening. It will take the place of the Vancouver Island Tennis League.

The old organization held its final meeting prior to the organization session of the new association.

Reg Corfield, president, gave a report on the year's activities. He stressed the special work that had been done to encourage junior players in the game.

The financial report showed a substantial balance. It was voted that the amount be transferred to the district association.

Following the organization of the new body it was pointed out that while the association can do little more than has been done in the past (by the league) the mere fact that the move places control of island tennis with the new body will help to further foster the sport.

TO PROMOTE GAME

Certain moneys previously sent to the provincial organization will be retained to promote the game. Representation on the British Columbia Lawn Tennis Association will be retained.

Corfield was elected president of the association and E. R. Jackson, South Cowichan, was chosen vice-president. Ron Kay was named secretary-treasurer.

Councillors of the new association were elected as follows: Cliff Margison, C.P.R.; Eric Cox, Victoria; Ralph Butler, Hillcrest; Ernie LeQuesne, Langford; Dennis Humphreys, Armadale; and H. B. Vogel, Duncan.

Dr. E. W. Boak was chosen as honorary president; Dr. G. M. Weir, Dr. J. D. Hunter, C. S. Swayne and Reeve Alex. Lockley, honorary vice-presidents.

E. R. Jackson of South Cowichan was chosen as district representative to the B.C.L.T.A., and Dr. A. Poyntz, Cliff Margison and Dennis Humphreys councillors to the provincial body.

'Y' Swim Club DANCE MAY 17

Baseball Opens Here Tonight

Last season's two strongest clubs, Pitzer and Nex, defending champions, and Tillicum Athletics, are drawn together for the initial senior baseball attraction of the 1940 season tonight at Athletic Park. Play will start at 6.

Tomorrow at the same enclosure a double feature senior program has been arranged by the officials of the Victoria Baseball Association. Eagles will battle Navy in the afternoon tilt at 2.30 and in the evening the feathered tribe will be stacked up against Athletics. This starts at 6.

As all clubs have had more than a month of training sessions, followers should witness a trio of good diamond quarrels tonight and tomorrow.

These three games are openers in the McGavin Cup series and Mayor Andrew McGavin will be on hand this evening to launch the first ball on its flight to the plate. Aldermen Stan Okell and John Worthington of the city parks board will also attend. The Victoria Boys' Band will be in attendance.

Duff Waddell, formerly of Winnipeg, and said to have a fast southpaw delivery, is expected to get the call from Pitzer and Nex camp to do the twirling, and Louis Leonard will undoubtedly go to the hillock for the Athletics.

Nanaimo Plans 2-Day Race Meet

British Columbia's 1940 thoroughbred racing season will get away to an unofficial start with a two-day meet at Frank Beban's six-furlong track in Nanaimo in conjunction with May 24 celebrations in that city. There will be racing May 24 and 25.

Some first-class B.C.-bred horses will be seen in action, including such top-notchers as Sahara Chief, who campaigned successfully on southern tracks this winter; Maize B. who also won a fair share of purses in the south; Some Turley and Flying Heir, handicap runners of last season in B.C., and several two-year-olds who will be making their first public appearance.

Officials in charge of the meet have already received 30 applications for stalls from Victoria, Vancouver and Duncan owners.

Presiding judge will be Dr. W. J. McKeon. George Dunn, assistant starter to Clay Puett last year, will handle the starting duties with Bill Buchanan as his assistant.

Purses for handicap events will be $150 added, these being made possible through contributions of Elks and Gyros of Nanaimo.

There will be seven races daily, with six horses entered in each event. They will be run from five furlongs to a mile.

B.C. Gymnasts To Compete Here

Gymnasts from Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria and other parts of the province will compete in the annual British Columbia gymnastic championships to be held at the local "Y" gym, Saturday evening, May 25, under the auspices of the senior leaders corps of the Victoria association.

The championships will be under sanction of the British Columbia section of the A.A.U. of Canada.

Competitions will be on the parallel bars, high bar, mats, flying rings and horse with pommels.

Trophies will be presented the winning team, individual winners on the five pieces of apparatus and runners-up, and the all-round champion and runner-up.

It will be the first time in a number of years that local sports followers will be given the opportunity to witness a championship gym competition. A large crowd is expected to attend.

Two of the outstanding local competitors in the championships will be Doug Marsland and Don Kerr, both of the "Y." Marsland captured all-round honors at the Pacific Northwest "Y" championships in Seattle recently and Kerr was runner-up. Marsland specializes in mat work while Kerr gives his best on the spectacular high bar.

Provincial Recreation gymnasts from Victoria and parts of the mainland are expected to match their skills with "Y" and other athletic groups in the championships.

Drops Home 19 Points In Victory

MONTREAL (CP)—There can be no fault found with Donald (Dudie) Bloomfield that the 23-year-old Montreal Y.M.H.A. guard put on his star turn just at a time when Jim Bardsley of Vancouver decided he wanted top billing in the Dominion basketball final.

What happened was that the second game of the best of five series last night became a two-man show. But, while Bloomfield was a dazzling, fighting spearhead of the Montreal squad, his performance was relegated to a side ring by the attraction provided by Bardsley as he paced the Maple Leafs to victory.

A school teacher by trade, the 25-year-old forward at one time in the game matched the Y.M.H.A. basket for basket when the Vancouver team threatened to collapse before Montreal's sustained offensive. In all, he tallied 19 of Leafs points in a 48 to 46 victory that left Vancouver needing only one more win to take the series.

Just after the start of the second half Bardsley was called on for his greatest performance. Behind 27 to 19, Montreal began to click with Bloomfield showing the way and one after another the balls dropped into the Maple Leaf basket.

RALLIES LEAFS

But none was unanswered. Rallying the collapsed Leafs, Bardsley single-handed matched the Y.M.H.A. score almost basket for basket. He scored all 11 points notched by Vancouver in the first seven minutes of the half and by that time the Leafs were organized again.

Perhaps even more heroic, however, because the cause was a losing one was the youthful Bloomfield. He scored 18 points—only one less than Bardsley—and shone more brilliantly against the Maple Leafs, a classier and more experienced team than Montreal.

Despite Bardsley's stand during the opening minutes of the second half, Bloomfield was good enough to place Y.M.H.A. one point in front with but four minutes of playing remaining. He did it by notching two field goals in succession to make the score 45 to 44 after Y.M.H.A. slowly had whittled Vancouver's margin.

PLAY BY PLAY

In fact, the game appeared almost a repetition of the first during the opening half. Maple Leafs took the lead on a basket by Bardsley about a minute after play started, and continued to forge ahead as the Y.M.H.A. seemed unable to find the basket.

Ross, sinking three baskets, paced the Maple Leafs in the first half. Defensively, he broke up many Montreal rushes, and at the end of the half Vancouver led 25 to 16.

It was Bardsley again who scored the opening basket of the second half, but this time the Montreal attack was functioning more smoothly. Both teams notched almost basket for basket for about 10 minutes.

The Leafs stayed about five points in front until about 1[illegible] minutes remained. Then Kossank a free throw and Bloomfield bagged two successive field goals to send Montreal into 45 to 44 lead.

Alan Kasnoff, Montreal guard made good on a free shot to put Y.M.H.A. two points up, [illegible]

Racing Service To Lose Wires

CLEVELAND (AP) — Declaring a "nationwide plan still exists" for circulating racing results, Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin ruled yesterday that Western Union Telegraph Co. need not supply wires to a Youngstown, O., service.

Recalling the agreement of M. E. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, to discontinue his Nationwide news service, Judge Wilkin said evidence "tended to show that in spite of the assurances made in Chicago, a nationwide plan still exists and is in operation for continuance of what is essentially the same as the Annenberg service."

The Empire News Service, owned by Morris Wexler, Clevelander under indictment at Chicago for lottery law violation in the dissemination of race news, had asked the court to restrain Western Union from pulling down lines to Empire's Youngstown office. Western Union sought such discontinuance in line with its announced policy to cease serving racing bureaus.

The U.S. government, which entered the case as a friend of the court, contended Empire served gambling houses. Empire replied most of its news was of a general nature, but declared transmission and sale of horse racing news violated no Ohio law.

about two minutes remaining. Rann Matthison knotted the count a minute later, however, after Maple Leafs rallied desperately, and then Bardsley was awarded a free shot that won the match.

As an anti-climax, Ralph Henderson made good on another free throw, with about seven seconds to play. Y.M.H.A. got the ball in the last two seconds, but Bloomfield's shot as the buzzer sounded, bounded clear, after striking the rim of the basket.

Canada Backs Distinctive Art

"Canadian art has been born out of a varied assortment of environments; from the boats floating at anchor in the Maritimes, to the rolling hills of the eastern provinces, to the flat prairies and to the mountains and lakes of the west," said Arthur Lismer, A.R.C.A., director of educational work at the National Art Gallery of Canada, before a large gathering in the auditorium of the Central Junior High School last night.

Mr. Lismer, one of Canada's foremost artists, spoke under the joint auspices of the Department of Education, the Extension Department of the University of British Columbia and the Vancouver Island Society of Arts and Crafts. The lecture was well illustrated with slides, showing work done by many famous Canadian artists, sculptors and pottery workers. The title of the lecture was "Art in Canada."

Mr. Lismer criticized the imitation of English art by Canadian artists, and urged the diversion from this practice and the introduction to the Dominion of wholly Canadian art.

"We are gradually achieving a measure of craftsmanship in many of our crafts such as pottery and woodcarving," said the speaker.

"We are an international country and anything we do affects the rest of the world. We cannot live by ourselves and therefore should try to divert ourselves from imitation. We have a clever and cultured people but we are imitators in the world of art."

Among the Canadian artists some of whose works were shown by Mr. Lismer were McDonald, Thompson, Jackson, Robinson, Harris, Carmichael, Colgate, Fitzgerald and Carr.

"Emily Carr is a great institution. Here is an artist around whom a great school of art could be founded. She gives Canadian color as well as background in her work," said Mr. Lismer, in commenting on the famous artist. Miss Carr is a resident of Victoria.

J. Kyle, representing the Vancouver Island Society of Arts and Crafts, and Major Cuthbert Holmes, representing the University Extension Association, thanked the speaker on behalf of their respective organizations and the guests.

Colonel F. T. Feray, director of technical education of the Department of Education, was chairman of the meeting.

Scientists say reptiles appeared on earth about 500,000,000 years ago, and that the last of their giant races became extinct about 100,000,000 years ago. A few warm-blooded animals appeared on earth during that time, but they were unimportant and were dominated by the reptilian giants.

MADE AS CAREFULLY AS MODERN Aviation Oils

● Modern aircraft engines demand the very finest in scientific lubrication. They must have oils that will stand up under the most gruelling conditions—oils that must not fail in a crisis—oils that will resist heat, prevent wear.

The New Marvelube for your car is made as carefully as modern aviation oils. It goes through a very exacting process and was developed in Imperial Oil laboratories to stand up under the high temperatures and pressures at which today's engines operate. To you the New Marvelube means two things:

1. Economy. Even at today's high operating temperatures, the New Marvelube stands up. You use less oil.

2. A cleaner, livelier engine, free from carbon, gum and varnish. You get more power from the fuel you use. Maintenance costs are lower.

ONLY IMPERIAL OIL USES ALL THESE REFINING PROCESSES

Other refineries may use one or more. Only in the manufacture of the New Marvelube are all these modern processes used:

Vacuum Distillation separates gummy, black substances from the oil, which, in an engine, cause heavy carbon deposits.

Solvent Dewaxing separates the wax from the oil, permitting it to flow freely at low temperatures.

Phenol Solvent Refining removes undesirable materials from the oil, the presence of which causes oil to sludge very badly.

Clay Contact Treatment gives the oil its final polish and removes the last trace of impurities.

First Aid by Air

British, French Planes Fight for Holland

By REILLY O'SULLIVAN

THE HAGUE (AP) — The Netherlands went to war with Germany today after Adolf Hitler's land and air forces had crossed the Dutch border.

She sought immediate contact with the Allied command for strong assistance to hurl back the invader.

The first sign of Allied aid was British and French planes droning through the sky of the low country in search of the foe.

The nation, spurred by a proclamation by Queen Wilhelmina placed its entire strength against the German spearhead and battled fiercely with the "suicide squads" of German machine gunners landed by parachute in the Netherlands interior.

The Netherlands air force took to the skies, joining patrols of British, French and Belgian planes, and it was reported that at least six German planes were shot down in the first hour of warfare. (Later it was officially announced at least 70 German planes had been downed).

From the Hague flew the Netherlands foreign affairs and colonial ministers, seeking liaison with Allied leaders in London.

DUTCH PREPARED

The Dutch army, said to have been fully prepared for the invasion, was putting up strong resistance in the east despite one German thrust which was said to have carried the invasion 15 miles within the border.

At various points German transports dumped parachute shock troops who came billowing down to earth for rearguard assaults on the Dutch. Many of these men were shot.

Bridges over the Maas and the Waal rivers had been blown up to block the overland advance of the Germans. There were indications the full force of the inundation defence in threatened areas was released.

Despite the stubborn resistance of the Dutch air force and anti-aircraft batteries, German planes were said to have landed troops at some interior points, while Hitler's power-diving bombers blasted at strategic aerodromes.

The Germans heavily bombed Amsterdam's airport at Schiphol, but were blocked from landing there by a screening barrage of anti-aircraft fire.

The explosion of bombs could be heard clearly in Amsterdam. But the people there went about their business much as usual. The only other outward indications of a departure from normal were queues in front of Amsterdam banks.

CHECK "FIFTH COLUMN"

The government immediately put into force plans for civil defence. A blackout was ordered, starting tonight. Civil militia in Amsterdam was mobilized and efforts were made to frustrate any "fifth column" activities within the nation.

The Dutch had before them the recent lesson of Germany's invasion of Norway, in which confusion of orders, sabotage and treachery within Norway aided the German advance.

All Germans in the Netherlands were ordered to remain in their houses.

"Persons arousing suspicion that they violate this order expose themselves to serious danger for their lives," said a Dutch broadcast.

The military advised newspaper correspondents that telegrams for dispatch abroad would be handled as usual, but subject to severe censorship of anything considered "alarmist." No telephone calls to foreign countries were permitted.

To Attend Camp

Included in a number of British Columbia nonpermanent militia units, which this week will go under canvas at Vernon for a seven-day training camp, are a number of Victoria soldiers who are members of the Army Service Corps.

The camp will commence on Sunday.

Attending the camp will be the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, the Rocky Mountain Rangers, the Commissioner Officers' Training Corps and a small detachment of the engineers and ordnance corps.

The Petrol Company of the 6th Division, R.C.A.S.C., will parade Sunday at 12.30 p.m. at the Armories to proceed to the camp. Each man is required to bring his own personal belongings, such as shaving equipment and towels. Dress will be full marching order.

Officers of the Victoria Aerie No. 12, Fraternal Order of Eagles, for 1940-41 have been elected as follows: D. Essler, president; R. Love, vice-president; J. Wilmshurst, secretary; W. Jones, treasurer; P. Caine, inside guard; W. Griffin, outside guard; J. Paine, conductor; H. McDonald, L. Andrews and A. Pynn, trustees; Dr. A. D. Bechtel, aerie physician.

Bro. Weborg of Everett Aerie No. 13 gave a talk on membership, having been a member of this aerie for 23 years. Bro. Weborg invited all the Victoria members to attend the state convention being held in Everett June 14-15.

May Temperature Highest Yesterday

Yesterday's maximum temperature of 70 degrees, which was recorded at the Meteorological Observatory, Gonzales Hill, between 1 and 2 in the afternoon, was the highest this month, but was nothing out of the ordinary in comparison with the temperatures for May of the past few years.

The second warmest day of the month was on May 1, when the mercury touched 69 degrees.

On May 12, 1936, 70 degrees was recorded, and in 1935 the same temperature was enjoyed on May 8. May 13 and 14 of last year saw the thermometer rise to 78 degrees. In 1937 and 1938 May was cool at the start, warming up as the days passed by.

The cause of showers that have been falling in Victoria was given to a depression centred off the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Forecast today was for fresh west to southwest winds, partly cloudy and cooler; Saturday, southerly winds, clearing and moderately warm.

The National Commissioner of the Red Cross Society, Dr. Fred W. Routley, accompanied by Mrs. Wallace Campbell, O.B.E., of Toronto, chairman of the women's work committee of Red Cross, will address a public meeting Thursday afternoon next at 4.30 in the Empress Hotel. Dr. Routley has recently returned from a tour overseas and will give first-hand information on the work of the Red Cross in the various European war zones.

Business Groups Protest Gas Law

Pressure from business interests urging the provincial government to delay passage of its gasoline control legislation was maintained here today but there was no indication the government would accede.

It was generally expected in legislative corridors that the administration would push right ahead with its program and that by tonight the special session will be prorogued with the two control bills made the law of the province.

One gives the government permission to enter the gasoline business on a competitive basis if this is thought necessary. The other empowers the government to operate the existing gasoline distribution system if companies refuse to supply gas to the public.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce last night joined a prominent Vancouver Board of Trade delegation in urging delay in the legislation until business men could study its full implications. Messages urging the action were sent to the government and the local members.

The Vancouver Board's brief, submitted by H. R. Cottingham, president, to Premier Pattullo, said in part:

"The damaging effect to the maintenance and development of industry and business in British Columbia cannot be exaggerated, and the council of the Vancouver Board of Trade has instructed us to express the most emphatic opposition to such legislation.

"We see no possible justification for the alienation of the rights of the individuals by attempting to authorize the confiscation of private property.

"We see no possible justification for the government to seek to be empowered to engage in the petroleum industry or any other industry or business which is not strictly a matter of government."

NUDE WOMEN!

"There's a nude woman parading before a window at Douglas and Fisgard Streets," said an excited voice over the telephone at police headquarters this morning.

"Where?" inquired Detective H. F. Jarvis who answered the phone.

"Douglas and Fisgard" was the reply.

"Right, we'll send a man right away," answered the detective.

Quickly he informed the desk sergeant, Syd Wilkinson.

Constables John Blackstock and John Lund were dispatched on the double to the scene which is only a stone's throw from headquarters.

There was a nude woman there all right. In fact, there were several. They were dressmakers' dummies stripped in the window of the Hudson's Bay Company.

DEDICATION OF 'Y' CHAPEL HELD

The chapel of the Y.M.C.A. Red Triangle Hut at Macaulay Point was dedicated at a brief service conducted by Bishop H. E. Sexton yesterday afternoon and attended by Brigadier C. V. Stockwell, officer commanding Military District No. 11, and Mrs. Stockwell.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Whitehouse gave an address in which he spoke of the spiritual needs of the soldiers and the excellent use that would be given the chapel.

The name of the chapel is St. Christopher's. Furnishings were loaned to the war service committee of the association for the chapel by St. Christopher's College of Victoria for the duration of the war.

In addition to Brigadier and Mrs. Stockwell several officers of the district attended the service.

A good-night service will be conducted at the chapel every evening at 9.30 by Rev. J. Herdman, secretary of the "Y" war service committee, in conjunction with army chaplains.

Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from Modern Pharmacy and Cunningham Drug Stores or any druggist a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

STORY CLASSIC AT DOMINION

The screen version is vivid and realistic.

Opening in London during the Napoleonic period when all Europe was jittery with war alarms, the story tells how William Robinson, Swiss clockmaker, sees his four boys growing up to be useless snobs, his wife interested only in her shallow social pleasures.

Determined to make men of his sons if it can be done, Robinson sells out his business, embarks with his rebellious wife and offspring on an Australia-bound brig and plans to build a new life. But the brig is wrecked in a storm and the Robinsons, the sole survivors, ferry themselves to a nearby tropic island, along with a few barnyard animals.

English Comedy Coming to Plaza
Neither a native of that city nor a gangster, Danny Green, however, acts as a New York gangster in convincing fashion in "So This Is London," the 20th Century-Fox release starring Robertson Hare and Alfred Drayton, which will open at the Plaza Theatre on Monday.

Danny left England for America when he was 15 and lived in the shadow of Broadway for years.

Featured in the cast of "So This Is London"—are George Sanders, Berton Churchill, Fay Compton, Carla Lehmann, Stewart Granger and others.

ATLAS THEATRE
Cary Grant and Ralph Bellamy, the famed comedy combination of "The Awful Truth," are reunited for the first time since that memorable film in Columbia's Howard Hawks' production, "His Girl Friday," which is now showing at the Atlas Theatre. The new romantic comedy co-stars Grant and Rosalind Russell with Bellamy heading a long list of featured players, including Helen Mack, John Qualen, Ernest Truex, Roscoe Karns and Gene Lockhart.

CADET THEATRE
Hal Roach's "The Housekeeper's Daughter," at the Cadet Theatre provides movie-goers with the laughter and excitement important to first-rate motion picture entertainment. The new film production, a gay comedy romance based on the best-selling novel by Donald Henderson Clarke, stars brunette-tressed Joan Bennett as the heroine of the story, with Adolphe Menjou and John Hubbard as her two heroes.

Canadians Prepare
ALDERSHOT, Eng. (CP) — Rugged, sun-tanned men of the Canadian First Division applied themselves to their training tasks today with greater vigor than ever.

News that Germany had launched an attack on the low countries and Luxembourg spread through the area like wildfire.

At headquarters Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the First Division, and other staff officers paused to listen to radio news before starting out on a routine inspection tour.

Despite the tense and serious faces, there was a feeling of general relief. "At last it has come; now we can get on with the job we came over here to do," one officer remarked.

'Grapes of Wrath' Coming to Capitol
To develop completely the human, everyday warmth and power of the most widely-discussed novel of modern literature was the primary concern of all those connected with Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Grapes of Wrath," John Steinbeck's sensational best-seller, which 20th Century-Fox will present at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

Among the players prominently featured in "The Grapes of Wrath" are Jane Darwell as Ma Joad, John Carradine as Casy, Charley Grapewin as Grampa, Dorris Bowdon as Rosasharn, Russell Simpson as Pa Joad, O. Z. Whitehead as Al, John Qualen as Muley, Eddie Quillan as Connie and Zeffie Tilbury as Granma.

Two Women in Lincoln's Life
The two principal women in Lincoln's life will be played in Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer prize play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," in which the Playwrights' Company will present Raymond Massey at the Royal Victoria on May 16, will be played by Muriel Kirkland as the far-seeing Mary Todd, who predicts she would some day be the president's wife, and by Augusta Dabney, as appealing little Ann Rutledge, the love of Lincoln's younger days.

Other historic roles will be taken by Clarence Chase as Mentor Graham, Arthur Griffin as Judge Bowling Green, Lewis Martin as Ninian Edwards, Calvin Thomas as Joshua Speed, David Clark as William Herndon, George Christie as Stephan A. Douglas, James Allen as Willie Lincoln, Robert Allen as Tad Lincoln, and Jack Payne as Robert Lincoln. The entire cast of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" numbers over 50 players.

PLAZA THEATRE
Revealing dramatic details of the battle which law agencies and the press are waging against blackmail rings which extort millions of dollars from hapless victims each year, Universal's timely production, "Framed" is now at the Plaza Theatre.

Featured roles are enacted by Frank Albertson, as a young reporter who fights to capture the criminals and clear himself after being "framed." Constance Moore is the girl who comes to his aid.

OAK BAY THEATRE

A teen-aged former child star, Dickie Moore, has staged a curious "comeback" in Universal's "The Under-pup," now at the Oak Bay Theatre. Robert Cummings, Nan Grey and Gloria Jean are stars of the new Joe Pasternak production.

Once widely known as a screen "wonder child," Dickie was then relegated to minor parts while entering the notorious "awkward age."

RIO THEATRE
The career of a notorious bandit is depicted in "The Arizona Kid," Republic western which is now at the Rio Theatre. Roy Rogers and George "Gabby" Hayes have the leading roles. Stuart Hamblen plays McBride, the bandit, and Sally March, in her movie debut, plays the romance in Roy's life.

CHEVROLET HEADQUARTERS 971 YATES

Rex Delayed By Mail Seizure

NEW YORK (AP)—Officers of the Italian liner Rex reported on her arrival here yesterday the vessel was held for 13 hours at Gibraltar and that 1,124 sacks of mail were taken off by British authorities.

At the same time, British authorities returned 494 sacks of mail and parcel post removed earlier from other Italian ships.

Among the Rex's 1,160 passengers, including 350 Americans and some 200 German refugees, was Adolfo Alessandrina, a special Italian envoy sent here to consult British authorities in an effort to speed clearance through Gibraltar of Italian ships bearing cargoes from United States.

Others aboard included Fritz von Opel, the former German motor manufacturer and rocket-ship experimenter, who now is a citizen of the principality of Liechtenstein, who was taken off the Italian liner Conte Di Savoia on April 24 while en route to United States.

Von Opel declared he had certain information that Italy would enter the war on Germany's side and that he even knew—although withheld—the day when this would occur. He also declared he had "been told" that many German-Jewish refugees coming here were "spies."

An Italian journalist aboard said, on the contrary, that there was no immediate prospect of Italy's entering the war on either side.

Miss Kyllikki Pohjala, Conservative member of the Finnish Parliament, arrived to confer with Herbert Hoover about Finnish relief.

Since the German invasion of Norway, she said, 90 per cent of the children in Finland "must sleep on the floors today."

She said about half the children in the entire country were ill—from lack of food, from exposure and the like, and that in one hospital for 20 children there was but one pair of shoes. In one village, she added, 48 children died within one week.

Wheat

WINNIPEG (CP)—General buying precipitated by Germany's invasion of the European lowlands shot wheat futures prices more than a cent above the previous close on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Quotations started their climb at the opening bell and although offerings were liberal at the highest, they finished 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents higher, May at 90, July 91⅞ to 91⅞ and October 94¼.

Commission houses, speculators, exporters and southern interests all swung to the buying side in the general advance.

It was estimated that the export support represented an overseas business of about 200,000 bushels while Canadian and American milling interests were credited with taking approximately 250,000 bushels of wheat out of the pit.

At Buenos Aires, wheat traders took a bearish attitude toward the Nazi invasion and Argentine values slumped about 3 cents.

Coarse-grain prices also scored wide gains, with a 10-cent allowable jump in flax quotations leading the way on speculative buying. Moderate mill purchases in Nos. 2, 3 and 4 northern and No. 3 garnet provided almost the only action in the cash wheat market.

CHICAGO (AP)—Heavy dealings in the grain pits in the wake of Germany's western attack today caused an immediate price rise of ½ to 5 cents for principal cereals after which the market fluctuated nervously and without definite direction.

The choppy trade that followed the early price advance was a result of profit taking, which at times cut gains about in half. Except for speculative buying due to the psychological effect of the war's spread and some purchasing credited to mills, the wheat market demonstrated that many dealers were confused by developments and the uncertainty of the European situation.

Wheat closed 3 to 4⅛ cents higher than yesterday, May 1.08⅞ to 1.08¾, July 1.08⅜ to 1.08⅝; corn 1½ to 2⅛ higher, May 68⅛ to 68⅛; July 69 to 68⅞; oats ¼ to 1¼ higher and rye 3 higher.

1 to 5 Point Losses

NEW YORK (AP)—With the exception of a few war stocks, prices crumbled in today's market as Wall Street attempted unsuccessfully to figure the effects on domestic industry of Germany's overnight smash at the neutral Low Countries of Europe.

It was one of the speediest sessions since the outbreak of hostilities last September, with the ticker tape occasionally as much as five minutes late. Losses ranged from one to more than five points at the worst, although recoveries were in evidence here and there at the close. Transfers were in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 shares, despite slowdowns after midday.

Steels, aircrafts, coppers and sugars bounded up at the start, while rubbers, rails, utilities, oils and a variety of peacetime specialties sank rapidly. The early climbers were subsequently thrown for declines, but several managed to revive at the last and finish with modest plus signs.

Prominent stocks on the relapse were: U.S. Rubber Common and preferred, Chrysler Aircraft, American Airlines, United Aircraft, International Paper, Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak.

Resistance was exhibited by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Boeing.

Dow Jones averages closed today as follows:
30 industrials 144.76, off 3.41
20 rails 29.80, off 1.37
15 utilities 24.03, off 0.82

Charlotte Going On Alaska Tourist Run

On the arrival of the Princess Charlotte here from Vancouver at 3.10 tomorrow afternoon she will be withdrawn to prepare for the opening of the Alaska tourist season at the beginning of next month.

The Seattle run will be taken at 4.30 tomorrow by the Princess Marguerite, which left drydock today on the completion of her annual refit.

June 1, the Princess Charlotte will sail north, inaugurating the summer sailings to Alaska, to be followed by the Princess Louise June 8 and the Princess Alice June 19.

The Princess Louise is at present maintaining a 10-day schedule to Skagway, while the Princess Alice is completing her overhaul here.

Cruising on Minena

Harry T. Barnes, who recently retired as manager of Rithet Consolidated Ltd., is making a cruise in the Gulf of Georgia aboard his yawl Minena.

He was at Cowichan Bay on Monday and from there planned to sail to Kuper Island with the intention of touching at Nanaimo on the homeward leg of the cruise. Skipper Barnes took along W. Trant as a member of his crew.

Crash Kills 3, V. Breese Escapes

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A spectacular collision of two planes about 400 feet over the Downey Airport, near here, cost the lives of three men.

They burned to death after one of the planes had crashed and caught fire. The victims were:

Walter Quintan, 35, burbank, pilot for the Paul Mantz Flying Service; Marshall G. McCarroll, Hollywood, head of Paramount Newsreel on the Pacific coast, and Marshall Coombs, Vultee Aircraft photographer.

The unaccompanied pilot of the other plane, Vance Breese, landed uninjured. With his left landing wheel dangling uselessly, he came down on the right, which collapsed.

Vance Breese visited Victoria in October, 1931, when he flew Col. Charles Lindbergh's plane from the east to meet the "Lone Eagle," who was passing through this city on his return from the Orient.

Canada Depicted At New York Fair

MONTREAL—The largest photographic montage ever made, depicting the scenic grandeur of Canadian parks, resorts and cities, together with various operative phases of Trans-Canada Airlines, will form the background of the exhibit of Canadian National Railways at the New York World's Fair when it reopens May 11, according to officials of the system. For those unfamiliar with the term, a montage incorporates a series of photographs laid out on anomalous design and representing a definite theme.

Curved to provide a blending pictorial background for the central portion, the montage will have in the centre a motion picture screen on which natural color pictures are to be displayed continuously, showing a trip across Canada on the Canadian National Railways and by Trans-Canada Airlines.

Included in the exhibit is an authentic replica of a T.C.A. plane, eight feet long, with a wingspread of 10 feet, and a large colored map outlining the routes of Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Airlines.

The montage, which will play a featured role at the travel exhibits of the fair, will be situated in the Canada Building, a popular attraction for last year's visitors.

NAZI ATTEMPTED SWIM TO FREEDOM

OTTAWA (CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy in its report of H.M.C.S. Assiniboine's part in the capture of the German merchant vessel Hannover, told today how a German sailor, taken prisoner, broke free and attempted to swim away from capture.

The prize of war was taken in tow by a British cruiser and the Assiniboine on March 8 in the Caribbean Sea, after being set afire by the Nazi crew. Some escaped, but others were held aboard the Royal Navy vessel.

En route to port, while both navy vessels sought to keep the flames under control, the German sailor jumped overboard from the cruiser. He avoided lifebuoys thrown toward him and was swimming strongly for the horizon when an Assiniboine party took after him in a boat.

These words in the Assiniboine's log told of the event:

14:10 proceeded at 20 knots to pick up man overboard from H.M.S. ——.

14.25 sighted man swimming strongly.

14.26 lowered whaler.

14.30 whaler picked up man who requested coxswain to shoot him. Coxswain regretted he had no gun.

These signals passed between the ships:

From the British cruiser—Man has persecution mania and has been trying this for days. You had better watch out. Heil Hitler!

From Assiniboine—have three lifebuoys, two white, one red and one German who wants to be shot. German is in spud locker as we are out of spuds.

AIRPORTS STRAFED

BERLIN (AP)—The German high command claimed today that units of the German air force "successfully bombarded" airports in central and eastern France and "completely destroyed" the airport at Metz.

Nazi Sees Molotoff

MOSCOW (AP)—Count Friedrich Werner von Der Schulenburg, German ambassador to Russia, visited Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff this afternoon. No official statement has been made regarding the meeting.

16 French Killed By German Bombs

NANCY, France (AP)—Sixteen were killed and 30 injured in bombing raids by German planes during the day in the Nancy region, civil and military authorities announced tonight.

Two new alarms were sounded, from 3 p.m. to 4.35 p.m., and from 5.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m., during which several bombs were dropped. Military authorities said a schoolhouse was among the buildings destroyed.

ALL IN SAME BOAT—Men and dogs are on equal footing amid the perils of wartime transport, as is shown by this picture of French Chasseurs Alpins aboard ship off Norway. Valuable St. Bernard dogs, as well as the famed mountain soldiers, were life-belted.

Thus Spake Mussolini

LONDON (CP)—It was suggested in official circles here today that the reaction of all civilized peoples to the German invasion of the low countries cannot be better expressed than in the words used by an Italian Socialist leader named Benito Mussolini in 1914 who said:

"I know there are some infamous cowards who reproach Belgium for having defended herself. They said she should have taken German money and allowed the Germans free passage, whereas by resisting she had exposed herself to the systematic and scientific destruction of her cities.

"But Belgium lives and will live because she rejected that ignoble ideal. If she had accepted, she would have been dead for all time. Long live Belgium!"

SWISS MOBILIZE

BERNE (AP)—The Swiss government ordered general mobilization tomorrow at dawn, and announced a precautionary "state of war" would begin at midnight "in view of the profound changes which have taken place on the western front."

The Swiss army, a communique said, is ready "for any eventuality . . . to face any menace from whatever side it may come, in conformity with the absolute desire of the Federation for neutrality."

A German bomber which crossed the frontier at Grenzach, and flew over Basel en route to France, was the target of anti-aircraft fire from guns at Altkirch and Belfort. The plane returned to Germany at 4.15 a.m. Soon afterward 20 bombers crossed the frontier at Loerrach, some of them passing over Swiss territory en route to France. Heavy fog prevented Swiss air defence from bringing any planes down.

Anti-war Candidate Beaten in England

LONDON (CP)—Major E. G. R. Lloyd, national government candidate, today defeated Annie Maxton, a stop-the-war candidate, in a by-election to fill the House of Commons seat left vacant when the Marquess of Clydesdale went to the House of Lords on becoming the Duke of Hamilton.

The vote was 34,316 to 8,206. In the 1935 general election, the Marquess, a Conservative, polled 35,121 votes to 22,475 for a labor opponent and 6,593 for an independent candidate.

Lloyd's opponent became the eight anti-war candidate to be beaten by a wide margin.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE, with Major Hoople

OUT OUR WAY— By Williams

Antwerp is Among Leading World Ports

The largest port in Belgium is Antwerp. Indeed, it ranks among the leading ports of the world!

Yet Antwerp is not extremely large.

A scene in Antwerp.

I have said that Antwerp is a great port, but it is not on the sea coast. It is nearly 50 miles from the shore of the North Sea. It has become a large port because it lies beside the River Scheldt, which is deep enough for the use of ocean-going vessels.

The River Scheldt is about 270 miles long. It rises in northern France, then flows through Belgium and Holland.

There is a big cathedral in Antwerp. Work on it was started in the year 1352, about 100 years before Christopher Columbus was born. It was not finished until after Columbus died.

The Antwerp Cathedral rises to a height of more than 400 feet, and is one of the landmarks of Belgium. Most of the tall buildings of Europe are churches with high steeples. Europe has few tall office buildings, and the tallest office buildings in Europe do not compare with skyscrapers in large cities of this continent.

Napoleon Bonaparte, 140 years ago, spoke of Antwerp as "a pistol which points at the heart of England." Napoleon spent many years at war with Great Britain. He lived in the days of sailing vessels.

No doubt Napoleon was thinking of Antwerp as a strong, safe harbor from which warships could steal forth and strike at England. It might have served in that way, but Napoleon was not able to break down British sea power.

If Hitler wants to strike a hard blow at Great Britain he may think of Antwerp as a base for submarines. He could not, however, obtain this great port without taking it from Belgium. To have a clear path to the sea from Antwerp, Hitler would need to conquer Belgium, and probably Holland as well.

HOROSCOPE

Saturday, May 11

Benefic aspects dominate today which should be fortunate for industry, which will expend through coming months. It is an auspicious date for signing contracts.

This is a most promising sway for women, who should work with energy toward any goal in business or the professions. It is not a lucky time for seeking the aid of men in high places, but will be favorable for independent action. Competition with men will still be attended with obstacles, but the stars herald success in financial matters.

Co-operation between employers and employees is prognostigated.

International banking problems will cause increased concern. Statesmen will advocate economies but the cost of government and war will increase.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of steady advancement. The young will gain happiness through romances.

Children born on this day probably will be fond of home and family, clever in ability to make much of opportunities, bright in mind and strong in body.

Nazi Pilot Spy Held By British

LONDON (CP) — Along with six uniformed German airmen who landed at a Scottish port yesterday was a seventh Nazi pilot wearing civilian clothes, who admitted he had photographed the principal Scottish fishing ports before the war.

He carried a miniature camera and took many hundreds of photographs at every place he visited, he said. In May of last year, when Dr. Wenn Gregor, German consul at Glasgow, visited a northern fishing port, the Nazi pilot had several private conversations with him.

The pilot is believed to have been engaged for a considerable time in important espionage work in Norway and strongly suspected of having been an advance Nazi agent in Norway.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

ANSWER: The 20 deciduous, or milk teeth, are lost by approximately the 13th year.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Here is a question I would like you to answer if you can: I have two sisters. Both in their late thirties. One is a blonde; won a beauty prize when she was young; married a poor man and they have had a hard time to get along, but she loved him and they have always been very happy. The brunette sister has always had things easy. She henpecks her husband, corrects him in front of guests, nagged her two children until they hate her and have left home, yet this sister has always been the centre of a crowd at her home, drinking and dancing. She never bothers with people when they are sick or in trouble. Now my question is: Why is my brunette sister in on all the fun and parties? Why is my sister who is a second angel just popular when people need help?

PERPLEXED.

Answer: I think you are mistaking excitement for happiness. You think that your sister who has a crowd of people around her all the time drinking and carousing is popular; but that is an error. She is surrounded by a lot of social deadbeats, good-time Charlies and Charlottes who will go anywhere where there is free food and drink and plenty of noise and laughter. But if tomorrow your sister should lose her money and be unable to entertain there is not a one of them who would come near her.

When a woman of middle age always has to be in a crowd, always has to be rushing from place to place, it is an infallible sign that she is restless and discontented. She has no inner peace nor comfort and she is seeking abroad what she lacks at home. Your sister treats her husband, badly, she has been brutal to her children and driven them from home, and she is trying to fill their places with dissipation. You might better pity her than envy her.

The angel sister does not need your sympathy. Her fun is in doing good, not in wild parties. Her friends are the people she has helped. Her home is a place of peace and rest, not a rough-house party. She has the love of her husband, and that makes her rich beyond the dreams of avarice. Don't pity her, envy her.

DOROTHY DIX.

Hitler Demanded Lowlands Accept His 'Protection'

BERLIN (AP)—When Adolf Hitler sent his troops into Belgium and Holland shortly before dawn today he duplicated his tactics with Norway and Denmark, demanding that they accept his "protection" of their neutrality without resistance.

Germany's Ruhr Valley was threatened by an Allied attack, he told the governments of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg through his foreign minister, and the Dutch and Belgian governments were conniving at it.

Wherefore, Germany was declared compelled to act to anticipate the blow.

The German government assured Holland and Belgium that their territorial sovereignty would be restored to them and that their overseas possessions would go untouched.

The precondition to these assurances was that these countries accept Germany's "protection" without resistance.

Any resistance, Germany warned, would be broken resolutely.

RIBBENTROP TALKS

Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop summoned foreign press representatives to the foreign office for a 7 a.m. conference, but apparently his talks with the Belgian ambassador, Vicomte Jacques Davignon, and the Netherlands minister, Jonkheer H. M. Wehrer—to whom the situation was imparted—took longer than the mere handing over of the memoranda.

Not until 8.25 a.m. (1.25 a.m., P.S.T.) did Ribbentrop, pale, sleepless and with a voice husky and deep in bitterness, address the foreign correspondents.

"England and France at last dropped the mask," he declared. "The attack on the Ruhr Valley was definitely planned. It was to come via Belgium and Holland.

OBJECT TO AGGRESSION

"This attack was planned with the knowledge and connivance of the Belgian and Dutch governments. Our Fuehrer was not willing to have this important region submitted to new aggression.

"The Fuehrer therefore has decided to take the neutrality of Belgium and Holland under his protection.

"Germany now will talk only the language which the English and French governments seem to understand, and settle scores once and for all with them."

The foreign minister then read the text of the memorandum to the three governments, which began with a reiteration of the German standpoint that "the main object of the British and French is to extend the war to other countries."

For days the Reich has been calling reserves in an unprecedented manner.

From every side evidence poured into the Associated Press office that not only men up into the fifties were being drafted, but even first Great War veterans who lost an arm or a leg were being called to take the place of military office workers sent to the front.

Reports from the Dutch and Belgian frontiers brought back by travelers unanimously agreed roads and railways to both borders were choked.

Germans openly boasted to foreign correspondents that Germany had completed the minutest details, down to supplying 185,000 rubber boats for navigating the flood areas of Holland.

29 PAGES

To back up Von Ribbentrop's assertion that Germany had "absolute proof" of the marching plans of the French and British armies, there was handed to the foreign correspondents a report by the German high command. This was dated May 4 and was signed by Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel, commander-in-chief of German defence forces. It comprises 29 typewritten pages.

Section one attempts to prove that Belgium was unneutral from a military viewpoint. Gen. Keitel said documents found in Warsaw after the capture of that Polish capital showed there was a regular exchange of information with regard to Germany on the part of Belgium and Holland.

Keitel alleged that 18 British sports planes with British instructors had arrived near Liege for the Belgian army, and that French and British commands had arrived at various Belgian garrisons.

Section two of Keitel's report took up the Netherlands. To Holland, too, according to Ketel's reports, came British officers who posed as tourists.

With 10 dwellings to the acre, the whole population of the earth could be housed comfortably in an area the size of Kansas.

Await Mussolini's Move

A British squadron is shown at anchor off Alexandria, Egypt, powerful British naval base in the eastern end of the Mediterranean, where an Allied battle fleet is concentrated today awaiting the next move in the European war. The Italian fleet is reported at the Dodecanese Islands and all British merchant shipping has been ordered out of the Mediterranean by the British admiralty, thus clearing the inland sea for action.

'For Officers Only'

To the Editor of the Manchester Guardian

Sir:—A few evenings ago I was having supper in the dining-room of an hotel "somewhere in England," when a young man, who had come in with a young woman, was told by the head waiter that he could not be served since, he was in uniform but was not an officer. The young man was very much taken aback, since the hour was late, there was a thick fog outside, and he would have difficulty in easily finding another place to eat. However, the head waiter insisted that he had no choice but to act according to his instructions, nor was my own very forcible protest of any avail. I was very much shocked, since I imagined that I had heard and read public pronouncements to the effect that this policy was not being pursued in this war.

The next morning I took the matter up with the hotel authorities and was informed that they were acting at the request of the local army authorities and that the "request" was hardly one that they could ignore. I can understand that the officers quartered in the surrounding countryside might desire the equivalent of an officers' club or messroom in the town, but it seems outrageous that the public dining-room of a public hotel should be chosen for this purpose.

There seemed to me a special irony in the fact that not far from the hotel door was a large red poster announcing to the young man that his freedom was in peril and that he must defend it with all his might. Before donning the unifor in which to defend and preserve democracy he had enjoyed the democratic right to enter any public restaurant and order whatever he could afford. Now that he had been conscripted to defend liberty and democracy he found to his dismay that in the process of doing so he had lost an elementary democratic right. For the young man in question, whose breeding and education were not manifestly inferior to those of the officers I saw in the hotel, it must have been a bitter and humiliating experience. We shall be told that this practice is necessary in the interests of discipline. I could not help wondering what was likely to be its effect upon his loyalty.

PRIVATES IN RESTAURANTS

From Manchester Guardian

On December 5 of last year Mr. Hore-Belisha as Secretary for War told the House of Commons quite explicitly that there was "no objection from the military point of view" to private soldiers or noncommissioned officers dining in the same restaurant as commissioned ranks. He also denied that there had been any War Office instruction to hotelkeepers that would have the effect of raising such an objection. Yet in our correspondence columns this morning the case is described of a young man who was asked to leave the dining-rom of an English hotel because he was in uniform, but not an officer, and when our correspndent wondering at this conflict between the action of the head waiter and the assurance so recently given by the secretary for war, took the matter up with the hotel management he was informed that the action was based on the request of local military authorities.

That seems undesirable enough in the course of a new war for liberty against Prussianism, but Mr. Harold Nicolson, in the Spectator of January 5, gave details of a still more objectionable case. A private soldier on leave decided that he would dine at a Piccadilly restaurant known to him as a civilian; according to Mr. Nicolson, he was, with his meal hardly begun, requested to leave because a major dining at a distant table had objetced to his presence and had instructed the head waiter to ask for his withdrawal. Here, it would seem, are two inroads on the principle embodied in the announcement of last December that the War Office sees no objection from a military point of view to officers and men dining in the same public room: the local military authority may think (and act) differently from the War Office, and so may a mere major who happens to be representing nobody but himself.

How many other people are entitled to go back on the assurance of December, and in what circumstances, if any, would they be supported by the War Office? One of the things which Parliament might usefully do would be to extract a definite answer from the new secretary for war.
